Kidnap Footprints?

This Is How G-Men Use Science to Check Up on Suspected Snatchers.

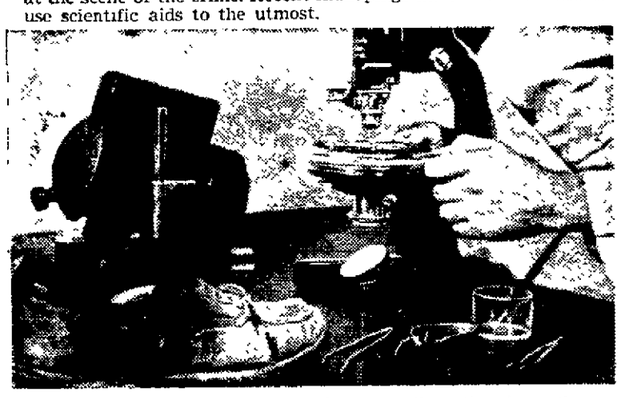
1 SUSPECT'S SHOES, sent in by an agent, are vacuum-cleaned at Federal Bureau of Investigation headquarters. The scientific G-man's job is to learn whether the man who wore them was at the scene of the crime. Recent kidnapings have forced G-men to use scientific aids to the utmost.



2 THE DIRT, more important just now than the shoes themselves, is chemically treated and then examined through a microscope. Dirt from the scene of the crime is treated and examined the same way. The chemicals will stain the two samples exactly the same if they came from the same place.

3 A CAST has been made of a footprint left by the criminal. The scientific G-man compares the suspect's shoes with it. If the shoes match the print, and if the dirt from the shoes is the same as that from the scene of the crime, things look bad for the fellow under suspicion.

G-Men Still Silent On Kidnap Case Clue

(By International News Service)

MIAMI, Fla.—Principals in the Jimmy Cash kidnaping case maintained a tight-lipped silence today regarding reports that G-men know the identity of the double-crossing abductors.

A burst of activity at the F. B. I. offices here late yesterday, however, followed the statement of a close friend of the Cash family that the father had recognized one of the kidnapers when he paid over the $10,000 ransom last week.

More than 30 friends and acquaintances of the man reported named as the "snatch" leader were rounded up and questioned for some hours yesterday. All were subsequently released.

Betty Howard, a 24-year-old waitress, told newspapermen after her release, that she had been quizzed about her friendship with one of the men held for several days last week. She refused to divulge his name but said that many of his acquaintances had been questioned also.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the F. B. I. who came here from Washington to take personal charge of the case, criticized unauthorized statements relating to the case when questioned about what angle the investigation was taking.

All but two of those previously in custody had been released today. M. F. Braxton, a carpenter at Princeton, and his son, Pedro, remained in confinement at the office of the federal agents here. Wills Campbell, a former federal convict, James Herndon, night club owner, and Ray Rayburn, were freed.

Hoover last night called off the widespread manhunt that has cov-

SET FOR BLAST

Davey to 'Take Lid Off' Akron Situation on Air Today.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Gov. Martin L. Davey said today he would "take the lid off the labor and industrial situation in Akron" during his regular Monday night state-wide radio broadcast at 7:15 p. m.

"The topic will be handled without gloves," the governor's office announced.

Meanwhile, Charles Sawyer, Governor Davey's opponent for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, demanded to know why a committee appointed by the governor to investigate the highway department had not made a report.

"Are they waiting to whitewash the governor just before the primary or is the report as bad that it cannot be brought out before the primary?" Sawyer asked.

5,000 JOIN IN DEDICATION OF LIBERTY PARK

'Dreams Come True' as City's Newest Recreation Center Is Formally Opened.

LAUDS COMMUNITY SPIRIT

Judge Huston Points to Unity in Building for Future; Memorial Dedicated.

Gaiety mingled with reverence yesterday afternoon as approximately 5,000 persons helped to dedicate Liberty park and paid honor to the memory of Frankie Frisch, one of Mansfield's great athletes who grew up in the Liberty park area.

Under a cloud-flecked sky, the audience heard city and park officials voice their appreciation for the untiring work of residents of the northeast section of the city who "made a dream come true" in building the city's newest recreation center.

Judge Principal Speaker.

Representing more than four years' of work and an expenditure of well over $100,000, Liberty park transformed 25 acres of wasteland into a beauty spot that reflects the progressiveness of its founders, the speakers said. The park was opened late last summer.

With Gov Martin L. Davey, who was scheduled to make the principal address, unable to attend, Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston delivered the dedicatory address His subject was "Mansfield Is On the March."

Pointing out that Mansfield has found a new spirit of unity in building for the future, Judge Huston said: "We ought to be optimistic about the future of the city; we have a program for the betterment of the entire community."

Cites Need of Co-operation.

He added that there is no longer a "Syndicate," a "John's Park addition" or a "Woodland," since the city has come to realize that it must work in co-operation if it is to grow and realize its goal.

Commenting on the criticism that sometimes results from the use of WPA funds for city projects, he said, "we hope that the time will come when we won't have to ask the federal government for funds for such projects as this."

As president of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, Judge Huston outlined that organization's program, including slum clearance, a non-partisan parks governing body, a more extensive playgrounds program and added police and fire protection for the city.

In the presence of members of the Fisch family who were seated on the speakers' platform, Rev. R. C. Goebel, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church, dedicated a monument to Frank Fisch, who died last August in an army plane crash in Texas.

"It is befitting," Father Goebel said, "that on the occasion of the ### Community Fund Begins Fight to Make Up Deficit.

The "campaign within a campaign" to raise $6,000 in six days, the deficit in the Community Fund budget, got off to a flying start this morning when volunteer workers took their places in downtown business places and offices, and a flood of posters appeared throughout the business district.

Workers in the emergency campaign were equipped with large glass jars, bearing the imprint of a big red heart and the inscription "Be Big Hearted."

Posters emphasized the fact that Mansfield was ready to fight to keep its welfare agencies. "Let's Finish The Job!" the posters shouted. "Six Thousand Dollars in Six Days! Give Again!"

A worker at the Mansfield Savings bank was jubilant this morning when the first person to give threw a $10 bill into the jar.

The emergency campaign closes Saturday night.

1,700 Jam Church For Senior High Baccalaureate Services

More than 1,700 persons, one of the largest groups ever to attend a service at First Lutheran church, overtaxed the capacity of the church auditorium last night for the baccalaureate services for the June graduating class of Senior high school.

The parents, relatives and friends of the 287 graduates overflowed into the Sunday school section and basement of the church, where six loudspeakers carried the voice of Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the church and baccalaureate speaker. More than 100 of those attending stood throughout the service.

Speaking on "Choosing the Better Part," Rev. Swoyer told the graduates that "we have two sides of life, one moves in things and the other in meditation."

"One seeks material blessings but the other seeks the spiritual," Rev. Swoyer said. "One is absorbed in compacts, meals and games, while the other seeks truth and God."

As an illustration of material and spiritual blessings, he pointed out that one nation will seek power, guns and machinery, while the other seeks beauty, culture and spirituality.

"One seeks the lower and the other the higher. Each one has the power to decide and each one is accountable and must answer to God.

"You have to decide first in everything you do in life," Rev. Swoyer told the class. "There is

Key Figures As Iowa Casts Votes Today

Senator Guy M. Gillette. Representative Otha D. Wearin.

The most heated Democratic senatorial battle in the history of normally Republican Iowa reached its climax today, as voters of the state marched to the polls to cast primary ballots.

The contest for the Democratic senate nomination assumed unusual significance after high Washington administration figures—including Harry Hopkins, WPA chief and James Roosevelt, secretary to the president—issued statements regarded as endorsements for Representative Otha D. Wearin, who is opposing Senator Guy M. Gillette, seeking renomination. Gillette has been a New Deal opponent.

CALLS ON LABOR TO BEAT DAVEY

Rubber Worker Leader Tells Non-Partisan League He 'Broke Promises.'

"Demonstrate your power at the polls and defeat Gov. Martin L. Davey in the primaries," Thomas H. Burns of Akron, international vice president of the United Rubber Workers of America, told 100 delegates at the Richland county convention of Labor's Non-Partisan league Saturday.

"Davey has made promises," Burns charged, "but he broke those promises—there is nothing you can do about that—it is past, but is is possible to stop him at the primaries and at the election."

He urged labor to participate in politics and exercise its rights as citizens.

"Go to the polls and obtain the type of government you want," Burns said. "Demonstrate your power and see that every political office, no matter how small, is void of the seed of corruption."

Burns charged that Davey was responsible for an Ohio government of corrupt politics similar to that of Jersey City, which he said was controlled by Mayor Frank Hague.

"Ohio is no better, this state has furnished some of the finest sets of crooks known," he told his audience.

He referred to the Harding administration and its Tea Pot dome scandal.

He blasted Gov. Davey for being responsible for the sales tax which he claimed paid for the governor's political campaign. (The sales tax measure was passed by the legislature under the administration of former Gov. George White.)

Spurn Independent Plea For Revision Of Milk Ordinance

The Richland County Milk Producers' association today had refused to "go to bat" for independent producers in the county in their fight for fewer sanitation restrictions on raw milk producers.

Meeting with directors of the association Saturday night at the farm bureau offices in Mansfield, a committee of three independent producers asked the county association to join with them in a protest to the Mansfield health board against what they termed "unreasonable requirements" for small producers.

Clarence Mowry, Springfield township, head of the producers' association, told the committee that his organization "is satisfied with the board's health code and has no reason to wish to change it."

Charles Pittenger, of near Shelby, member of the independent committee, argued that the small producer has to comply with too many expensive requirements for the amount of money he receives for his product from the dairies.

NEW OFFER

Compromise Wage-Hour Bill Proposed by Thomas.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Sen. Elbert D. Thomas, D., Utah, chairman of senate conferees, today offered a new wage-hour compromise which he hoped would be acceptable to senate advocates of southern wage flexibility and house proponents of uniform rigid standards.

Thomas revealed his proposed compromise as house and senate conferees met again in an effort to remove disagreements over the controversial measure.

Thomas proposed that a three-year period of flexibile wages be allowed during which time an administrative agency would be empowered to authorize gradual wage increases from the basis 25-cents an hour minimum.

ROOSEVELT BIG ISSUE IN IOWA

State Votes in Primary Today With Gillette-Wearin Race as Feature.

(By Associated Press)

Unqualified support of Roosevelt policies was a major issue in Iowa's Democratic senatorial primary today.

Senator Guy Gillette contended administration forces had marked him for defeat because he opposed the president's court bill. In his final appeal for renomination he declared he would not be a "rubber stamp member of congress."

Rep. Otha Wearin, his principal challenger, claimed administration backing because of his endorsement by WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins and James Roosevelt's reference to him as "my friend."

"The fate of the new deal is in the hands of the people of Iowa," Wearin said.

The contest not only split the party leadership in the state but divided organized labor. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, endorsed Gillette last night, while various CIO leaders have announced support of Wearin.

Three other candidates were in the field. If none polls 35 per cent of the vote, a state convention will choose the nominee. Polls close at 9 p. m. (EST).

In the Republican senatorial contest, Representative Lloyd Thurston was battling former Senator L. J. Dickinson.

In contrast to the nationwide attention centered on the Iowa contest was Saturday's Democratic senatorial race in North Carolina. Senator Robert Reynolds won renomination by nearly 100,000 votes over Representative Frank Hancock. Both pledged support to the national administration, and Hancock said he would back his vanquisher.

Davies' said that he discussed matters covering a broad field of general world affairs with Stalin.

Council Set For Renewal Of Gas Rates

Ordinance Expected to Be Passed On Third, Final Reading Tomorrow.

With apparently no obstacles in its path, the renewal of the present gas rate ordinance is expected to be voted by council tomorrow night when the measure comes up for final approval.

The ordinance which will continue the present rates—$1 for the first 500 cubic feet and 50 cents per thousand for all over that— is intended to replace the contract with the Ohio Fuel Gas company that expired May 15.

It will be council's third meeting in as many weeks for the consideration of new gas rates for Mansfield. The measure was given a first and second readings at special meetings.

There seemed to be no question that the measure would pass. None of the nine councilmen has indicated he favored a rate any higher than the present contract, although it was considered possible there might be perhaps two negative votes from councilmen who favor lower rates than those now in effect.

Company Stands By Offer.

William C. Mead, Gas company manager, said today the company would make no other proposal to council "other than what we previously made." Mayor Claude M. Hunter has said he would veto any ordinance that increased rates. The company's proposal—never submitted formally—would have boosted rates. The company agreed to renew the present contract for as many years as council wished if council would then grant the company an increased rate (amounting to 9 cents per thousand feet in the lower brackets) for the same length of time.

If the renewal measure is approved, the gas company will have 30 days in which to either accept or reject the rates. Should it decide on the latter course, it must appeal to the state utilities commission.

Also up for action tomorrow night will be a borrowing ordinance in the amount of $25,600 for the issuance of notes in anticipation of the collection of assessments on the improvements on three city streets.

These will include the borrowing of $14,000 for the paving of Ausdale avenue, $7,100 for Bartley avenue and $4,500 for Willis avenue.

Councilmen at a special session two weeks ago approved final legislation authorizing the improvements with the city's share to be paid from the automobile registration fee fund.

HOLDS UP STORE

Armed Bandit Flees With $26 From Kroger Branch.

A lone armed bandit held up and robbed the Kroger Grocery and Baking company store at 75 Hedges street of $26 shortly after 7 a. m. today while he menaced the manager with a small automatic pistol.

The gunman entered the store and purchased a five-cent package of tobacco shortly after the manager, Wilbur E. Radabaugh, 5 East First street, opened the establishment at 7 a. m.

Radabaugh told police that the man made the purchase and then asked for something to eat. He said he gave him a loaf of stale bread and then went to the rear of the store to get him some meat.

"I had picked out a piece of meat and when I looked up he was displaying a gun and announced that it was a stickup," Radabaugh told officers

He said the man ordered him to hand over $26 in change that was in the cash register and then forced him to enter a washroom.

MAYOR WILL SEEK OKAY OF PLAN TUESDAY

Says Extra Tax Would Raise $90,000 Annually to Meet Costs of Aiding Needy.

PROPOSED FOR TWO YEARS

Hunter to Urge Speedy Action as Deadline for Filing Petitions Is Friday.

With little help in sight from the state, Mayor Claude M. Hunter today sought to place the problem of financing the administration of direct relief before the voters at the August primaries by asking for a 2-mill relief levy.

Hunter said that legislation will be submitted to city council at its regular session tomorrow night asking it place the question on the ballot.

He said he would advocate a 2-mill levy for a period of two years that would raise approximately $90,000 annually.

Planned As Emergency.

Hunter explained that the measure was being drafted as an emergency and that he would ask for passage tomorrow so that a copy of the resolution can be filed with the board of elections before the filing deadline Friday.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley pointed out that even should the levy be approved at the primaries, that funds would not be forthcoming until "sometime in the early part of the 1939."

In the meantime mounting food bills for the past two months have already soared past the $20,000 mark and it was the immediate payment of these bills for the balance of the year that caused city officials deep concern.

Seek Transfer of $50,000.

A petition now before Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston seeks to transfer $50,000 from the sinking fund to the poor relief fund for payment of the bills for the balance of the year. The judge is expected to rule on the petition within the next week or 10 days.

Mayor Hunter explained that failure of the court to rule in favor of the city would call for drastic curtailments in all municipal departments.

"This would mean the immediate slashing of the personnel of

Hot Mix Prices Skid On First Bid Since Probe

"Hot mix" paving in Ohio has skidded to its lowest price in three years, bids on the first state highway project advertised since the senate began its investigation of the highway department showed today.

The lowest bid submitted for the paving of 2.645 miles of State Route 2 in East Cleveland was that of the Cleveland Trinidad Paving company, whose figure was $81,821. The highway department's estimate on the job to be paved with T-51, a high type of hot mix asphalt, was $98,768.

Analysis of the figures showed that the Cleveland company's bid was a sharp reduction in the cost of hot mix per yard, and that the state would save $32,229 on the work.

Last year, on another job, to be paved with the same materials, the state awarded a contract to the Cleveland Trinidad company at a cost per cubic yard of $19 80 for the surface material and $11 a yard for binder

The cost per cubic yard for the East Cleveland job will be $11 52 for the surface material and $9 a cubic yard for binder.

The senate investigating committee charged that the state had been paying higher prices for hot mix than cities and villages were paying for the same materials.

'Fear No Man,' Hodza Says As He Urges Czechs To Unity

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia —Premier Milan Hodza, in a fervent plea for national unity against the threat of war, defied Fuehrer Adolf Hitler today and declared that the Czechoslovak people "fear no man."

The premier spoke in reply to a Slovak demand for autonomy, presented at a mass meeting here.

In addition to the Agrarians, of whom Hodza is a member, the demonstration included the social democrats and national socialists —President Edouard Benes' party —the communists and the Jewish party.

Hodza spoke from the same balcony of the State theater on which Father Andre Hlinka, leader of the Slovak people's party, demanded autonomy for Slovakia and its 3,329,793 people in a speech yesterday.

"You are here today to represent the majority of the Slovak people," Hodza declared. "You have come here today when black clouds have gathered over Europe and our republic. We must ask ourselves if we are capable of maintaining our independence."

"We are, we are," yelled the crowd.

Hodza accused the leaders of the Slovak party of "trying to fool the world by demanding autonomy in the name of the Slovak people."

LEADERS SEEK QUICK ACTION ON MEASURES

Relief-Recovery, Deficiency Measures Top List; Try to Avoid Special Session.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—In a supreme effort to adjourn congress by Saturday, administration leaders today decided on day and night sessions to obtain action on a batch of measures.

While the adjournment date hinted chiefly upon an agreement being reached upon the highly-controversial wage-hours bill, there were several other measures which Democratic leaders said they would like to see become law before the legislators call it quits.

Deficiency Bill a "Must."

A "must" bill was the final deficiency appropriation bill which will carry about $300,000,000 in appropriations for many agencies of the government in order to carry on the rest of the present fiscal year.

The $3,722,000,000 relief-recovery bill upon which President Rosevelt has nailed his hope for return of prosperity was not expected to meet insurmountable barriers.

Determined to minimize the possibility of a special session of congress after the November elections, administration leaders disclosed they would insist upon senate amendments giving the president broad power in controlling the spend-and-lend program

These amendments included one to permit the executive to spend all of the WPA funds before March 1, if conditions require; to spend $125,000,000 for direct relief or the dole in event mass starvation threatens and to distribute $212,000,000 to the farm belt in anticipation of surplus crops and low prices in the fall.

Food-Drug Bill on List.

Before the adjournment gongs ring the Democratic leadership wants to send to the president for signature the bill to revise the food and drug laws as well as the measure setting up a new system of federal aid for the shipping industry.

Also certain for passage before adjournment, it was said, is a resolution to create a committee to investigate monopolistic trends in industry and finance.

"Say, who was that guy who helped me?" Zook asked the man's chauffeur on the way home.

"That guy," the driver replied, "Is Edsel Ford."

WESTINGHOUSE SETS VACATIONS

2,000 Employes of Mansfield Plant to Get Annual Holiday With Pay.

Despite the business recession, nearly 2,000 employes of the Mansfield Westinghouse plant will get vacations with pay this summer as usual, company officials announced today.

Vacation schedules are being worked out for about 600 office employes and more than 1,300 hourly-paid workers, officials said, with the length of the vacations depending upon the number of years the employe has served the company.

Vacations will be allotted on the basis of two weeks with pay to workers with 10 or more years of service and one week for employes with from five to 10 years service. Former service of new employes is counted under the plan after one year of continuous employment.

The vacation plan has been extended to a number of employes who are now on furlough because of business conditions, but whose period of service with the company would have earned them a vacation with pay if they had worked another 90 days, officials pointed out.

One of the pioneers in granting vacations to factory and office employes, Westinghouse spent approximately $1,000,000 for "paid" vacations last year, the announcement said.

WRITER OF MYSTERY YARNS KILLED IN BIZARRE PLOT

(By International News Service)

WORCESTER, Mass.—A writer of detective stories was Thomas E. O'Connell, but he was bludgeoned to death in as mysterious and bizarre a plot as his imagination ever concocted.

A crumpled birthday greeting card, bearing a scrawled "Sally" beneath the printed verse, and followed by an ominous message, was found in the blood-stained pocket of the 32-year-old writer.

It was the lone clue as puzzled police investigators today sought to determine the motive for the slaying and some trace of the slayer or slayers. Also sought was "Sally" to determine why she used a word of warning on the birthday card.

Written in pencil beneath the signature was the message:

"I appreciate this combination of nicety and apt suggestiveness. I hope it isn't minatory. Will you please save this card for me?"

From the dictionary, investigators learned the word "minatory" meant "threatening, as with destruction."

The young writer's birthday was on May 24. The printed greeting on the card read:

"You're nicer than nice,
And I'm sending this line
To wish you a birthday
That's finer than fine"

The body was found in secluded Institute park by a churchgoer early Sunday. Medical examination disclosed O'Connell had been beated to death with a blunt instrument. The jaw and skull were fractured and the neck was broken.

FARTHER OFF

Steel Operations in Country Drop to 25.5 Per Cent.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— The steel industry last week continued to decline, hitting a low of 25.5 per cent of production capacity throughout the country, the magazine Steel said today.

There is no indication that the steel market will recover immediately from its present dullness, as automotive and railroad accessory buying, usually a large part of the market, are practically non-existent.

In addition, steel said, delay by the government in making awards for merchant ships has further retarded the industry.

Prices for the third quarter were generally reaffirmed last week, and further price announcements, to clear up schedules, were expected this week.

TRIAL STARTS

YOUNGSTOWN — (UP) — The first degree murder trial of Herbert Ross of Cleveland, charged with the gangland slaying of Roy Marino last summer opened here today.

John Anthoulis, Steubenville, was convicted of Marino's murder recently but the jury recommended mercy for him. Solly Hart, reputed Cleveland gangster, is to be tried for the same murder later.

FRENCH FIRE ON SHIPS BOMBING RAIL STATION

Jap Planes Peril American Property as Bombardment of Canton Continues.

(By United Press)

Terrific aerial bombardment—endangering American, British and French interests — speeded the tempo of war today in Spain and China.

A series of swift developments along the two blazing war fronts threatened grave international complications and appeared to inaugurate new crises in both battle-battered nations.

In Spain:

Two groups of Spanish rebel airplanes roared across the Pyrenees into French territory and drew the fire of French anti-aircraft guns after dropping seven bombs near Ax-Les-Thermes and damaging a railroad used for Loyalist supplies. Premier Edouard Daladier, ordering French guns and French planes to repulse all such invasions, hurried to the scene.

In China·

British protests were renewed and American and French officials were expected to make new complaints as Japan's eight-day bombardment of Canton was intensified with a total of probably 6,500 killed and wounded.

Jap Armies Drive Ahead.

Elsewhere on the Chinese fighting fronts, the Japanese invasion appeared to be entering a new phase as river, land and air forces struck out vigorously at scattered points over many hundreds of square miles.

Evacuation of Hankow continued in orderly fashion and it appeared that Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek intended to make a firm military stand in the city rather than abandon it as was done in the case of Nanking.

FAIR ENOUGH!

There Were Some Things About 'Old Deal' That Really Weren't So Bad

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Next time Mr. Roosevelt or Honest Hal Ickes, the house dick of the New Deal, or Wallace or Jackson or any of those honorary proletarians who swing towels in that corner of the ring sounds off in disrespect of the Old Deal, I would appreciate it if somebody would refresh my memory on just what was wrong with it Because, chums, checking over my recollections, that seems to have been a pretty fair sort of era, especially by comparison with this New Deal period, and if there was anything to be sore about I want to do my duty.

Wasn't that the time when they were sticking up tall buildings in all the big towns and building swell new suburbs and kicking out new cars by the millions, including some which retailed for around $6,000 and, what's more, selling them? Wasn't everybody working who could or would work? Weren't fight tickets selling for $55 a copy at the box office and $100 at the gyps, and weren't ordinary, forgotten men able to fish up the price of $25 seats a couple of times a year? Check the files and see.

* * *

Remember how it was almost impossible to get a kid to run copy or get a can of coffee for you because they were all over in the corner reading the tape? Not the baseball tape, either. Hell, no, Pals! They were reading that stock tape and forming little syndicates and buying stuff on margin and making money at it, too.

The Iowa farmers were selling out and hauling away for southern California and Florida to take it easy, and ditch labor got $6 a day around here, anyway, and skilled men—some of whom weren't so very skilled, at that—got ten, twelve, twenty.

What do you want to bet that Jim Farley's business has made half as much under this New Deal that he goes around making neck sounds, but not heart sounds, about in duty speeches for the boss and the party as it made under the rotten Republicans?

* * *

And taxes! Friend, who ever mentioned taxes in those days?

And if it's a question of wage levels are you telling me that wages are higher under the New Deal after—how long is it—six years than under the old?

I do remember being pretty sore about prohibition, but, to be fair, it wasn't so bad after bootlegging got organized, and, however, we fostered a fine domestic skill in those days which is rapidly vanishing from our civilization now. I refer to the home manufacture of gin, beer and wine. Remember, you got a can of alky and some distilled water and some gin drops and a little bottle of glycerine, and it was as much a part of man's domestic duties to sling a batch of gin together once a week as to bake a mess of break back in the 1900s.

All gone now under repeal, and the poor doctors have lost a very reliable source of practice, in addition to which, with much less dough, the people have to pay much more for their square face, most of it for taxes, licenses and color-press pictures of pretty models in glove-tight swimming suits in the ads.

* * *

Yes, I know, the bankers and speculators and hustlers showed us a lot of wall-paper stocks and bonds, and everybody was knocked in the creek when the wagon threw a wheel.

But you wait and see what happens to Morgenthau's mavoureens one of these days and then tell me whether, and if so why, it's any more fun to be rooked by a political party and a lot of wabble-wits stuck away in offices in Washington than by a banker. Henry Morgenthau, for gossakes! Why, old Andy Mellon could have stolen his fillings right out of his face with boxing gloves on without Henry's even knowing it. Henry isn't the one who is shoving the queer. He just runs the building. You know, okays orders for so many mops and so many gross of paper clips and so many tons of spare parts for adding machines to keep track of that deficit. And the tape is a year behind, at that.

* * *

I just don't know, neighbor. For a long time when I would hear them say Old Deal in that curl-of-the-lip way I went along, too, feeling that, yes, it certainly was terrible, but let me ask you this: How were you doing back in those terrible days, and if this New Deal is going to be so swell when are those boys going to get through that long windup and let us see what they've got on the ball?

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The average picture's life on the screen is finished in a year or less. The exceptional picture can expect a small taste of something like immortality.

Currently on the screens of the nation are 20-odd pictures that did well enough on first release to warrant a second life. Some others, however, are going forth in an effort to make up for what they failed to do on first showings.

Product shortage, result of Hollywood's recent production calm, is not entirely responsible for the revivals, although a contributing factor. The main reason is the confidence that the fans will welcome back their old movie friends

"It Happened One Night," 1934's prize-winning picture, is probably the most popular revival. New prints have been issued, one is playing in a first-run Broadway house, and in at least a dozen theaters of the Southern California area "It Happened One Night" is drawing patrons To date this is Columbia's most profitable film. The same studio is re-issuing "A Man's Castle"—on the strength of Spencer Tracy's victory in the academy awards, plus Loretta Young's growing popularity

* * *

"One Way Passage" was successfully revived by Warner Bros., but this studio has no current reissues on the screens, unless in isolated spots. United Artists is profiting on new showings of "The Count of Monte Cristo"—here they even re-previewed it! — and will revive "I Cover the Waterfront." Metro's new "old ones" include "David Copperfield," "Treasure Island" and "Viva Villa," with "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Captains Courageous" in prospect. Paramount has "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "A Farewell to Arms" and "Ruggles of Red Gap," and Universal has put forth "Frankenstein," "Love Before Breakfast," "Dracula" and "Lady Tubbs."

Twentieth Century-Fox's only reissues are the perennialy popular Will Rogers films, two a year. RKO has frequent exhibitor calls for "King Kong," "Little Women" and "The Informer," but the reissues are not yet on a national basis Katharine Hepburn's early film, "Spitfire," is being shown in some spots with Bob Burns featured. He played a minor role in the picture.

Frequently a picture has to be revived to come "out of the red." Most notable recent example was "The Informer," a money-loser until the acedmy award and subsequent revivals put it in the black. Paramount may revive "Make Way For Tomorrow," which lost money but was building in popularity when withdrawn.

Perhaps the most notable instance of a long uphill struggle at the box-office was "Ben-Hur." Tremendously popular when released in 1926, the film had to clear its original cost of nearly $4,000,000. Through continuous showings here and abroad, through a re-release in 1931, "Ben-Hur" not only left the red but is now on the credit side of the Metro-ledger. "Hell's Angels" had a similar experience, cleared out more quickly.

Longest lived feature, however, is still "The Birth of a Nation." Made in 1914, it has played continuously—somewhere in the world—ever since.

Salads Tempt Spring Appetites

By IRENE OBERLIN
Home Service Department, Ohio Public Service company.

Salads are always a refreshing accompaniment for any luncheon or dinner. When used as the main part of the luncheon can be of a heavier, more substantial variety while for the dinner should be a more simple combination and the ingredients of course should not be duplicated in any other part of the dinner. The most important requirements of a good salad are that they should be crisp and cold and nicely seasoned.

This chicken salad recipe is a substantial luncheon accompanied with hot rolls or biscuits.

Chicken Salad.

3 cups cold cooked chicken (diced)
1½ cups celery
2 hard boiled eggs
¼ cup pimento or green pepper (cut fine).
1 cup maponnaise
Use a garnish of French endive and a few stuffed olives

Cooked Mayonnaise Dressing.

2 egg yolks (unbeaten)
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. mustard
Dash of paprika
2 Tbsp. lemon juice
2 Tbsp. vinegar

Make a thick, smooth white sauce
1 heaping Tbsp butter
½ cup flour
1 cup water

Add to the first mixture a cup of olive oil and then the hot white sauce and beat hard. This dressing will keep nicely a week or more in the refrigerator.

Salad for Twelve.

2 cans shrimp
2 pkg. lemon gelatin
1 pt. boiling water
2 cans (small) tomato soup
1 cup ripe olives (chopped)
1 cup walnut meats (broken)
1 cup celery
½ cup green pepper (cut fine)

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water and allow to cool. Then add all other ingredients—pour into a mold and chill over nights. Serve with a mayonnaise dressing, lettuce and garnish with hard cooked eggs and sections of tomato

For a lighter salad combination you will like this. For four people.

2 Avocado pears
1 cup celery cut in small pieces
½ cup chopped pecan nut meats
½ cup mayonnaise

Carefully cut the pears lengthwise into halves. Remove the pulp and cut in coarse pieces. Combine with celery and mayonnaise and return to the Avocado shell. Garnish with the nut meats and serve on a bed of shredded lettuce or endive.

Spring Salad.

1 head French endive
1 bunch water cress
2 carrots cut lengthwise in thin slices
1 small bunch celery (but same as carrots)
3 or 4 spring onions, cut lengthwise, 2 inch pieces
½ green pepper (sliced)
6 radishes (sliced)
¼ lb. swiss cheese (2 inch strips)

This should be tossed lightly together in salad bowl and marinated with a well seasoned French dressing.

Simple Fruit Salad

2 cups fresh pineapple (diced in large pieces)
1 cup white cherries

Stuff the cherries with soft cream cheese to which a few chopped nuts have been added. Serve with a dressing made with

3 Tbsp. lemon juice
2 Tbsp. orange juice
¼ cup sugar
Cook 3 or 4 minutes

Add 2 beaten egg yolks and cook a few minutes. When cold add ¾ cup whipped cream.

Turn-Overs And Appetizers

Linked sausages are rolled in biscuit dough, baked in a hot oven and served with a creole sauce—as a hot luncheon dish. Tiny cocktail sausages are placed on smaller rounds of biscuit dough, topped with strips of dough and baked—for the cocktail hour.

Judging Fish

To determine the freshness of fish, see that the gills are red, the scales stick close together, the eyes are bright and bulging, the fish is free from too strong an odor, the flesh looks clear and is firm to the touch.

Cover Custard

To prevent a coating from forming over the top of boiled custard after it has been poured into a dish, cover it as soon as it is cool with a lid or waxed paper and store it in the refrigerator.

Make your own kitchen containers out of coffee, baking powder or cracker cans. Remove all paper coverings, then paint or shellac the cans and put labels on them.

Strawberry Hint

Want to help keep your strawberries plump and red when they are cooked? Add a teaspoon of vinegar to each two cups of berries. But remember, prolonged cooking will destroy color, flavor and texture of berries whatever you do

Frosty Appetizers

When serving fruit cocktails, dip the rims of the glasses into fruit juice, then into confectioner's sugar That will put an attractive frosty - looking ring around the top.

Right now is an excellent time to start your dahlias. In heavy soils the tuberous roots ought to be about 4 inches deep and in sandy soils down to 6 inches. Don't cover the root with more than 2 inches of soil to start with, but fill in the hole as the plant gets up. Any good garden loam will do, but it needs to be well drained.

After shrubs and privet hedges the pruned, burn up prunings and save the ashes to mix in garden soil. The ashes will lighten and fertilize the soil.

Start Night Sessions to Adjourn Congress Saturday

LEADERS SEEK QUICK ACTION ON MEASURES

Relief-Recovery, Deficiency Measures Top List; Try to Avoid Special Session.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—In a supreme effort to adjourn congress by Saturday, administration leaders today decided on day and night sessions to obtain action on a batch of measures.

While the adjournment date hinted chiefly upon an agreement being reached upon the highly-controversial wage-hours bill, there were several other measures which Democratic leaders said they would like to see become law before the legislators call it quits.

Deficiency Bill a "Must."

A "must" bill was the final deficiency appropriation bill which will carry about $300,000,000 in appropriations for many agencies of the government in order to carry on the rest of the present fiscal year.

The $3,722,000,000 relief-recovery bill upon which President Rosevelt has nailed his hope for return of prosperity was not expected to meet insurmountable barriers.

Determined to minimize the possibility of a special session of congress after the November elections, administration leaders disclosed they would insist upon senate amendments giving the president broad power in controlling the spend-and-lend program.

These amendments included one to permit the executive to spend all of the WPA funds before March 1, if conditions require; to spend $125,000,000 for direct relief or the dole in event mass starvation threatens and to distribute $212,000,000 to the farm belt in anticipation of surplus crops and low prices in the fall.

Food-Drug Bill on List.

Before the adjournment gongs ring the Democratic leadership wants to send to the president for signature the bill to revise the food and drug laws as well as the measure setting up a new system of federal aid for the shipping industry.

Also certain for passage before adjournment, it was said, is a resolution to create a committee to investigate monopolistic trends in industry and finance.

'Helpful Fellow' Turns Out To Be Only Edsel Ford

DETROIT —(AP)— Elmer Zook, looking for a place to land his glider when he saw Lake St. Clair ahead, picked the expansive lawn of a large estate.

The owner hurried over to question the 21-year-old Zook about his unceremonious visit, then helped him dismantle his craft. He offered to store it in his garage and give the youth a ride back home.

"Say, who was that guy who helped me?" Zook asked the man's chauffeur on the way home.

"That guy," the driver replied, "Is Edsel Ford."

They didn't mean to be discourteous, but the three pilots who put their army planes through formations over Liberty park yesterday afternoon unknowingly interrupted Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston in the middle of his dedication speech. It was due to the length of the program which caused Judge Huston's talk to run over into the period set for the air maneuvers park officials said. Arriving here from Columbus 25 minutes early, the pilots used up the time by flying over Galion and Shelby, according to James Zimmerman. Mansfield Legionnaire who was at the controls of one of the machines.

WESTINGHOUSE SETS VACATIONS

2,000 Employes of Mansfield Plant to Get Annual Holiday With Pay.

Despite the business recession, nearly 2,000 employes of the Mansfield Westinghouse plant will get vacations with pay this summer as usual, company officials announced today.

Vacation schedules are being worked out for about 600 office employes and more than 1,300 hourly-paid workers, officials said, with the length of the vacations depending upon the number of years the employe has served the company.

Vacations will be allotted on the basis of two weeks with pay to workers with 10 or more years of service and one week for employes with from five to 10 years service. Former service of new employes is counted under the plan after one year of continuous employment.

The vacation plan has been extended to a number of employes who are now on furlough because of business conditions, but whose period of service with the company would have earned them a vacation with pay if they had worked another 90 days, officials pointed out.

One of the pioneers in granting vacations to factory and office employes, Westinghouse spent approximately $1,000,000 for "paid" vacations last year, the announcement said

WRITER OF MYSTERY YARNS KILLED IN BIZARRE PLOT

(By International News Service)

WORCESTER, Mass.—A writer of detective stories was Thomas E. O'Connell, but he was bludgeoned to death in as mysterious and bizarre a plot as his imagination ever concocted.

A crumpled birthday greeting card, bearing a scrawled "Sally" beneath the printed verse, and followed by an ominous message, was found in the blood-stained pocket of the 32-year-old writer.

It was the lone clue as puzzled police investigators today sought to determine the motive for the slaying and some trace of the slayer or slayers. Also sought was "Sally" to determine why she used a word of warning on the birthday card.

Written in pencil beneath the signature was the message:

"I appreciate this combination of nicety and apt suggestiveness. I hope it isn't minatory. Will you please save this card for me?"

From the dictionary, investigators learned the word "minatory" meant "threatening, as with destruction."

The young writer's birthday was on May 24. The printed greeting on the card read:

"You're nicer than nice.
And I'm sending this line
To wish you a birthday
That's finer than fine."

The body was found in secluded Institute park by a churchgoer early Sunday. Medical examination disclosed O'Connell had been beated to death with a blunt instrument. The jaw and skull were fractured and the neck was broken.

FARTHER OFF

Steel Operations in Country Drop to 25.5 Per Cent.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— The steel industry last week continued to decline, hitting a low of 25.5 per cent of production capacity throughout the country, the magazine Steel said today.

There is no indication that the steel market will recover immediately from its present dullness, as automotive and railroad accessory buying, usually a large part of the market, are practically non-existent.

In addition, steel said, delay by the government in making awards for merchant ships has further retarded the industry.

Prices for the third quarter were generally reaffirmed last week, and further price announcements, to clear up schedules, were expected this week.

FRENCH FIRE ON SHIPS BOMBING RAIL STATION

Jap Planes Peril American Property as Bombardment of Canton Continues.

(By United Press)

Terrific aerial bombardment—endangering American, British and French interests — speeded the tempo of war today in Spain and China.

A series of swift developments along the two blazing war fronts threatened grave international complications and appeared to inaugurate new crises in both battle-battered nations.

In Spain:

Two groups of Spanish rebel airplanes roared across the Pyrenees into French territory and drew the fire of French anti-aircraft guns after dropping seven bombs near Ax-Les-Thermes and damaging a railroad used for Loyalist supplies. Premier Edouard Daladier, ordering French guns and French planes to repulse all such invasions, hurried to the scene.

In China:

British protests were renewed and American and French officials were expected to make new complaints as Japan's eight-day bombardment of Canton was intensified with a total of probably 6,500 killed and wounded

Jap Armies Drive Ahead.

Elsewhere on the Chinese fighting fronts, the Japanese invasion appeared to be entering a new phase as river, land and air forces struck out vigorously at scattered points over many hundreds of square miles.

Evacuation of Hankow continued in orderly fashion and it appeared that Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek intended to make a firm military stand in the city rather than abandon it as was done in the case of Nanking.

FAIR ENOUGH!

There Were Some Things About 'Old Deal' That Really Weren't So Bad

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Next time Mr. Roosevelt or Honest Hal Ickes, the house dick of the New Deal, or Wallace or Jackson or any of those honorary proletarians who swing towels in that corner of the ring sounds off in disrespect of the Old Deal, I would appreciate it if somebody would refresh my memory on just what was wrong with it. Because, chums, checking over my recollections, that seems to have been a pretty fair sort of era, especially by comparison with this New Deal period, and if there was anything to be sore about I want to do my duty.

Wasn't that the time when they were sticking up tall buildings in all the big towns and building swell new suburbs and kicking out new cars by the millions, including some which retailed for around $6,000 and, what's more, selling them? Wasn't everybody working who could or would work? Weren't fight tickets selling for $55 a copy at the box office and $100 at the gyps, and weren't ordinary, forgotten men able to fish up the price of $25 seats a couple of times a year? Check the files and see.

* * *

Remember how it was almost impossible to get a kid to run copy or get a can of coffee for you because they were all over in the corner reading the tape? Not the baseball tape, either. Hell, no, Pals! They were reading that stock tape and forming little syndicates and buying stuff on margin and making money at it, too.

The Iowa farmers were selling out and hauling away for southern California and Florida to take it easy, and ditch labor got $6 a day around here, anyway, and skilled men—some of whom weren't so very skilled, at that—got ten, twelve, twenty.

What do you want to bet that Jim Farley's business has made half as much under this New Deal that he goes around making neck sounds, but not heart sounds, about in duty speeches for the boss and the party as it made under the rotten Republicans?

* * *

And taxes! Friend, who ever mentioned taxes in those days?

And if it's a question of wage levels are you telling me that wages are higher under the New Deal after—how long is it—six years than under the old?

I do remember being pretty sore about prohibition, but, to be fair, it wasn't so bad after bootlegging got organized, and, however, we fostered a fine domestic skill in those days which is rapidly vanishing from our civilization now. I refer to the home manufacture of gin, beer and wine. Remember, you got a can of alky and some distilled water and some gin drops and a little bottle of glycerine, and it was as much a part of man's domestic duties to sling a batch of gin together once a week as to bake a mess of break back in the 1900s.

All gone now under repeal, and the poor doctors have lost a very reliable source of practice, in addition to which, with much less dough, the people have to pay much more for their square face, most of it for taxes, licenses and color-press pictures of pretty models in glove-tight swimming suits in the ads.

* * *

Yes, I know, the bankers and speculators and hustlers showed us a lot of wall-paper stocks and bonds, and everybody was knocked in the creek when the wagon threw a wheel.

But you wait and see what happens to Morgenthau's mavoureens one of these days and then tell me whether, and if so why, it's any more fun to be rooked by a political party and a lot of wabble-wits stuck away in offices in Washington than by a banker. Henry Morgenthau, for gossakes! Why, old Andy Mellon could have stolen his fillings right out of his face with boxing gloves on without Henry's even knowing it. Henry isn't the one who is shoving the queer. He just runs the building. You know, okays orders for so many mops and so many gross of paper clips and so many tons of spare parts for adding machines to keep track of that deficit. And the tape is a year behind, at that.

* * *

I just don't know, neighbor. For a long time when I would hear them say Old Deal in that curl-of-the-lip way I went along, too, feeling that, yes, it certainly was terrible, but let me ask you this: How were you doing back in those terrible days, and if this New Deal is going to be so swell when are those boys going to get through that long windup and let us see what they've got on the ball?

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The average picture's life on the screen is finished in a year or less. The exceptional picture can expect a small taste of something like immortality.

Currently on the screens of the nation are 20-odd pictures that did well enough on first release to warrant a second life. Some others, however, are going forth in an effort to make up for what they failed to do on first showings.

Product shortage, result of Hollywood's recent production calm, is not entirely responsible for the revivals, although a contributing factor. The main reason is the confidence that the fans will welcome back their old movie friends.

"It Happened One Night," 1934's prize-winning picture, is probably the most popular revival. New prints have been issued, one is playing in a first-run Broadway house, and in at least a dozen theaters of the Southern California area "It Happened One Night" is drawing patrons. To date this is Columbia's most profitable film. The same studio is re-issuing "A Man's Castle"—on the strength of Spencer Tracy's victory in the academy awards, plus Loretta Young's growing popularity.

* * *

"One Way Passage" was successfully revived by Warner Bros., but this studio has no current reissues on the screens, unless in isolated spots. United Artists is profiting on new showings of "The Count of Monte Cristo"—here they even re-previewed it! — and will revive "I Cover the Waterfront." Metro's new "old ones" include "David Copperfield," "Treasure Island" and "Viva Villa," with "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Captains Courageous" in prospect. Paramount has "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "A Farewell to Arms" and "Ruggles of Red Gap," and Universal has put forth "Frankenstein," "Love Before Breakfast," "Dracula" and "Lady Tubbs."

Twentieth Century-Fox's only reissues are the perennialy popular Will Rogers films, two a year. RKO has frequent exhibitor calls for "King Kong," "Little Women" and "The Informer," but the reissues are not yet on a national basis. Katharine Hepburn's early film, "Spitfire," is being shown in some spots with Bob Burns featured He played a minor role in the picture.

Frequently a picture has to be revived to come "out of the red." Most notable recent example was "The Informer," a money-loser until the acedmy award and subsequent revivals put it in the black. Paramount may revive "Make Way For Tomorrow," which lost money but was building in popularity when withdrawn.

Perhaps the most notable instance of a long uphill struggle at the box-office was "Ben-Hur." Tremendously popular when released in 1926, the film had to clear its original cost of nearly $4,000,000. Through continuous showings here and abroad, through a re-release in 1931, "Ben-Hur" not only left the red but is now on the credit side of the Metro ledger. "Hell's Angels" had a similar experience, cleared out more quickly.

Longest lived feature, however, is still "The Birth of a Nation." Made in 1914, it has played continuously—somewhere in the world—ever since.

Legion Routed

Drop 12 to 3 Decision to New Philadelphia in Ragged Tilt at Fairground.

MR. DEWEY DURANT'S patience is virtually exhausted, and unless the present personnel of his American Legion club begins to produce in the near future, a number of changes in the lineup may result.

Everything that the Legionnaires did at the Fairground Sunday was wrong, and, consequently, they absorbed their worst whipping of the Central Ohio league season as they fell before New Philadelphia, 12 to 3, before a fair-sized gathering of fans.

Defense Crumbles.

Not only did the Legionnaires fail to show their customary punch at the plate, but their defense crumbled as they attempted to climb at the expense of the high riding Phillies.

Durant used three pitchers in an attempt to lighten the slaughter, but none was able to stop the visitors completely.

Howard Patterson started on the mound, but he was forced to turn over the job in the fourth to Harold Geiger, who was replaced by "Dud" Dudley, a new addition, in the eighth.

Six costly errors did not make their job any easier, and the failure of the attack to function in its usual fashion merely added to their woe.

Sunday was just one of those days when everything went wrong, Durant admits, but he was quite emphatic in his assertion that no posts can be regarded as cinched until the Legionnaires show more consistency in their play.

The Legion team, which outhit every opponent this season until Sunday, was limited to seven bingles by Right Hander Bill Everett, whose chief stock in trade was a slow curve, while the Mansfield hurlers yielded 16 blows.

Helpless At Plate.

Durant's men were literally helpless at the plate after the fourth. Donnan's triple and Dudley's single were the only hits secured by the Mansfielders in the last five innings.

Meanwhile, the visitors were hitting virtually everything that Patterson, Geiger and Dudley threw plateward.

Dudley showed up better than either Patterson or Geiger, but he was unable to escape damage entirely. Three hits in the ninth gave the Phillies their last two runs, but the youthful righthander exhibited a puzzling ball that yielded three strikeouts in the last inning.

The youngster is likely to get a starting assignment in the near future.

The Legionnaires scored all of their runs in the third inning. Patterson's three-bagger over the rail fence in right field with the bases clogged provided the tallies after Moxley opened the stanza with a hit of a like distance in the same direction and Beal and Durant drew passes.

Mansfield threatened only twice thereafter. In the fifth, Donnan hit Mansfield's third triple with one out, and was stranded. A double play erased another promising scoring chance in the eighth.

The Phillies obtained one hit or more in every inning but two. They were retired in order in the first, but a couple of hits produced a pair in the second.

Score Unearned Runs.

After a scoreless third, the invaders scored three uncarned runs in the next inning. Three errors mixed with a like number of hits did the damage.

Geiger took over the pitching burden in the fourth without a man retired, and put over two strikeouts to pull his teammates out of trouble temporarily.

Everything was fine again until the seventh when the Phillies slapped out five hits to score as many runs with the aid of three passes.

Enold obtained four of the 16 hits to lead the Phillies, while Donnan got two for the Legion and lost another when he was thrown out by a half step in the eighth.

CITY SOFTBALL LEAGUE RINGS UP CURTAIN TODAY

TODAY will mark the opening of the City Class A softball league schedule.

Action is scheduled on two fronts for the four teams entered in Mansfield's premier circuit sponsored by the City Recreation department.

Liberty park meets Johns park on the former team's diamond and North park faces Prospect park at Prospect in the opening engagements at 6 p. m.

Encouraged by the prospects of a tight race, Mansfield softball addicts are expected to pack the grounds for today's tilts.

The outcome of this year's race is questionable as the stronger teams of last year have been broken up by a zone plan which permits players to play only with the team in the district in which they reside.

However, all of the managers appeared optimistic as they held their final practice sessions last week for the inaugural assignments.

Opening pitching choices have not been announced, but Jimmy Fullager, ace of the Mansfield moundsmen last year, is expected to take the mound for John's park against the Liberty team. Bush, another capable mound toiler, or Wentz will be selected to oppose him.

Dick Treisch or Ted Frisbee, who, apparently, has regained the form which made him one of the most feared hurlers in the city several years ago, will take up the pitching burden for Prospect park. The hill choice of the North park team is doubtful.

The season will be split this year with the champions of the two halves meeting in a play-off to determine the league winner late in August.

Hi-Speeds Win Pair At Lakeland Beach

Petey Beer Receives Credit For Both Victories; Go 11 Innings To Take Nightcap.

THE Mansfield Hi-Speeds took both ends of a double-header from the Filbey Printers of Akron at Lakeland Beach Sunday, 5 to 2 and 6 to 5.

Petey Beer was on the mound for the Hi-Speeds in the first game, and he held the hosts scoreless in the last eight innings. The Mansfield team took the lead in the fifth on Manager Earl Herrick's single.

Ganaway hit a home run over the left field wall in the ninth to put the game on ice.

Beer set seven of the Printers down via the strike out route, and issued only one walk as he permitted seven hits.

The nightcap went 11 innings before a decision was reached. Beer went into the game in the 10th as a relief hurler, and also received credit for this victory.

The Hi-Speeds trailed 5 to 3 going into the ninth, but Clarence Herrick tied it up when he singled two runs across the plate. He doubled in the 11th to send Bob De Haven, who had singled, over the dish with what proved to be the winning run.

Lefty Deeds stared on the hillock for the Printers, but was relieved late in the game by Murphy.

Lawrence Smith Allows Only One Hit As Rex Billiards Win At Carey, 8 to 1.

Lawrence Smith was in form Sunday as he yielded only one hit to pitch the Rex Billiards to an 8 to 1 victory over the Carey Eagles at Carey.

The only hit obtained by the home team was a single by the opposing pitcher, Layton.

Smith was extremely wild. He issued nine passes, but was practically invincible in the pinches, and he dug himself out of a number of tight spots caused by his wildness by striking out eight.

John Stoner's Cuemen scored one run in the third and three in the fourth to put the game on ice.

Irvine pounded out three hits to lead the Billiards' 12-hit attack. Nichelvich and Foreman hit triples for the Mansfield team.

Merchants Blanked By Hayesville, 4-0.

The Mansfield Merchants were blanked, 4 to 0, by Hayesville at League park. The Merchants were unable to solve the delivery of Anderson for more than six hits, and they threatened only a couple of times.

Although allowing nine hits, Pete Metz did a fine job of hurling for the Merchants, and deserved a better fate. The visitors did not score until the sixth when a misjudged fly was good for three bases.

Weigand Blanks Bellville, 12 to 0.

Gil Weigand, who hurled a one-hit game last week, still had lots of stuff on the ball again Sunday when he hurled the Ira D. Ling Canzols to a 12 to 0 victory over the Bellville Merchants at Bellville.

Only one Bellville player got as far as third as Weigand set the Merchants down with six hits and whiffed seven.

Joe Miller, a new addition to the Canzols, and Willard Lockhart led the 13-hit attack with three bingles apiece. Fred Buzard was the fielding star of the game.

Shocking Upset Heads Week-End Sports Program

The week-end sports program furnished a shocking upset when Great Britain's Walker cup team triumphed at St. Andrews, Scotland, for the first time in the 16-year history of the international golfing series.

Here in the United States, the outstanding event was the I. C. 4-A track and friield championships, in which the Trojans from Southern California ran wild, amassing 47½ points—more than the next two schools combined—to romp off with their eighth team title. Michigan State was second with 24, and U. C. L. A. third with 22½.

The $25,000 added Belmont stakes for three-year-olds was won by an outsider, Mrs. W. P. Stewart's Pasteurized. Dauber, winnner of the Preakness and second in the Kentucky derby, finished a half length behind in the 1¼-mile feature.

Other sports results included: Alice Marble of Los Angeles won the St. George's Hill singles tennis title by beating Jadwiga Jedrzejowska of Poland, at Welbridge, Eng., and Tony Penna, Dayton, won the Kansas City open golf championship.

DON BUDGE ADVANCES, HIS PARTNER LOSES

PARIS—(INS)—Don Budge, of California, today was all set for a fourth round place in the French Hard Court Tennis championships, but his Davis Cup doubles partner, Gene Mako, also from the far west, was out of the tournament.

Budge won yesterday in the third round from Ghaus Mahammed, of India, while Mako was beaten by Tetsuo Nakano, of Japan.

BEATS DEFENDING KING TO WIN OHIO GUN TITLE

Reds Knock Giants Out of First Place

Cubs Climax Drive To Top Rung With 7 To 1 Win Over Phillies; Browns Nose Out Yanks.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Bill Terry's pre-season prediction that Chicago was "the club to beat" in the National league, was strengthened today as the Cubs assumed the lead, a half game ahead of the New York Giants.

It was the first time the Cubs have held the lead and it climaxed a drive begun on May 17 when they were in third place . . . 6½ games behind the pace-setting Giants.

The Cubs began their spurt by beating the New Yorkers two in a row, then went on to win 13 of their next 17 starts. This, coupled with the Giants' six game losing streak turned the trick. And now that Manager Charley Grimm's pitchers have started to click, the Cubs are going to be tough to dislodge. Only once in the Cubs' last 14 games has a Chicago pitcher failed to go the route.

Hit Timely, Too.

While they have been getting some excellent pitching, the Cubs have backed their hurlers up with timely hitting and fine fielding.

Chicago beat Philadelphia 7-1 yesterday. The Cubs bunched eight hits to do all their scoring in two big innings. Tex Carleton went the route for Chicago to gain his sixth victory.

Cincinnati added another game to New York's losing streak when Johnny Vandermeer beat them 4-1.

Boston and St. Louis divided a double-header. The Cardinals won the opener 7-6 when Elbert Fletcher's wild throw into the grandstand permitted Pepper Martin to come home from second with the winning run in the ninth. The Bees blasted four pitchers for 14 hits to win the second 10-3.

A 15-hit attack climaxed by a six run burst in the sixth inning gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 10-5 win over Pittsburgh.

In the American league, the leading Cleveland Indians increased their margin to four games when they nosed Washington 5-4 in 10 innings.

The second-place New York Yankees fell a game further behind when they were edged 6-5 by St. Louis.

Hangs Up No. 9.

Vernon Kennedy notched his ninth straight victory with a nine hit performance as the Detroit Tigers walloped Boston 10-4.

Chicago's White Sox snapped a 10-game losing streak when they beat the Philadelphia Athletics 8-2 in the first game of a double-header, but the A's took the nightcap 7-6 on successive home runs by Bob Johnson and rookie Sam Chapman in the seventh.

YESTERDAY'S HERO: Dick Siebert, rookie Philadelphia Athletic first-baseman recently bought from Columbus, who crashed out seven hits in eight times at bat.

GAINS FEATURE FIRST SESSION OF NEW WEEK

Steels, Motors, Rubbers, and Coppers Principal Groups Favored in Advance.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Stocks got off on the right foot in today's market and leaders stepped up fractions to a point or so.

Steels, motors, rubbers, mail orders and coppers were among groups principally favored.

Bonds inclined to do better and most commodities tilted slightly higher. Inspiration was lacking from foreign markets, the majority being closed for the Whitsuntide holiday.

Probability of a delay in the adjournment of congress was seen as a trading handicap, but hopes the pump-priming bill would be expedited, and the wage-hour dispute compromised, acted as a sustaining influence in brokerage quarters.

On the cloudy side of the market was the somewhat doleful survey of the magazine "Steel" which saw few signs of nearby improvement in this industry.

More notice was taken of the oil shares as the five largest producing states—Texas, California, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Kansas—fixed June allowable output at 12 per cent below the average daily total recommended by the Bureau of Mines.

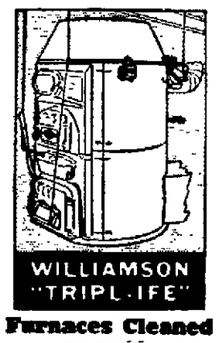
"Best furnace in the world—Tripl-life"

$2 A WEEK Will Buy A Williamson Tripl-life

"The Williamson Heater Company:
Your furnace gives so much comfort to our home compared to the one we used to have. It heats the home quicker. We put coal in and don't have to bother 'til bed-time.
We have used only four tons of coal all winter and have no trouble with smoke as sometimes in other furnace. If anyone asked me what kind of furnace to put in a home, I would recommend your furnace as the best in stock, or perhaps the world."
Signed—Miss Elizabeth Gutter, Mansfield, Ohio



FREE: Furnace Inspection. Did you burn too much coal, did you have too much illness—were your coal bills too high this past winter? We make free inspection, locate troubles, do repair work. Modest prices.

AUCKLAND, N. Z.—(AP)—When the American cruiser Louisville reached here after its Australian visit, the distinctive sailors' caps in her stores were all but exhausted and many a gob had only one to his name. In the meantime at Columbus, the Ohio League of Municipalities renewed its right in the legislature today for a $1,000,000 loan which would be advanced to cities from the state highway improvement fund for relief purposes.

Dispatches said the request for the loan will be pressed in the senate. The bill was approved by the house before it adjourned last Friday.

Duffy informed the division of insurance that policies containing a written clause that 15 per cent of the premium would be returned if the drivers had no accidents was valid and did not constitute a rebate, which has been barred in Ohio.

CALLS ON LABOR TO BEAT DAVEY

Rubber Worker Leader Tells Non-Partisan League He 'Broke Promises.'

Three persons were injured, one seriously, in a traffic accident at 9:15 p. m. Sunday near Lucas, the only major traffic mishap reported in the county over the week-end.

Three Ashland county residents suffered serious injuries, however, and at least seven persons died in Ohio traffic.

Hurt in the Richland county crash were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Russell of Loudonville, who received minor cuts and bruises, and Tom Evans, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Evans, 179 East Fourth street, Mansfield.

Thrown through the windshield when a car driven by Russell collided head-on with one operated by Harry West of New Philadelphia on route 39, the Evans boy suffered a deep cut on his throat and was taken to General hospital, State Patrolman C. B. Teiben said. His condition is fair, hospital attaches said. The crash occurred at a narrow bridge four miles south of Lucas.

Machine Skids Off Road.

Injured when a car skidded off a road on a curve south of Ashland at 2 a. m. Sunday, three Ashland young people were taken to Good Samaritan hospital, Ashland, and two others were treated for minor injuries.

Most seriously injured was Miss Dorothea Smalley, 19, who suffered a skull facture. George Reaser, 29, was treated for a leg fracture, and Paul Firestone, 30, driver of the car, received head cuts and chest injuries.

Others who suffered minor cuts and bruises were John Pastor, 19, and Duane Brown, 25 Pastor, who was the only one able to extricate himself from the wrecked car, summoned help.

Three persons were drowned Sunday when the automobile in which they were riding plunged into Grand lake at Celina. E. T Delafield, 47, of Celina, his daughter, Carole, 6, and his granddaughter, Shirley Glass, lost their lives as the Delafield car sank in eight feet of water. Two other occupants of the car were rescused.

Others who died in week-end accidents were Mrs. Justine Kneier, 58, of Cleveland, and Alexander Czeto, 30, of Dola, O., who died in separate auto crashes.

Charles Ross, 55, was killed by a hit-and-run driver near Gahanna.

GAS BILL GETS SECOND READING

Shelby Council Expected to Come Near Solution in Rate Fight Tonight.

SHELBY — Shelby's gas rate tangle is expected to come nearer a solution tonight when the second reading is given the new ordinance at the regular session of the city council at 7 p. m.

The rate ordinance was given its first reading last month at an adourned session of the council and was approved by a vote of 3 to 2. Councilmen Charles Swanger and John Chew voted against the ordinance which retains the "sandbag" feature, increasing the rates in the final two-year period of the five-year contract.

The present rate in Shelby is 74 cents per thousand for the 5,000-cubic foot consumer per month, the fifth year of a five-year "sandbag" contract. The new ordinance sets rates for the same consumer at 69½ cents per thousand for the first three years, and 74 cents a 1,000 for the final two-year period.

Councilmen said today that there would be at least a three-man bloc to prevent any attempt to pass the final passage of the ordinance at tonight's session, if the second reading is approved.

CITIZENS GROUP ORGANIZES TO EYE SPENDING

Sets Up Permanently to Keep Check on State Department Expenditures, Practices.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—A citizens committee formed to assist in prosecution of taxpayer suits for recovery funds allegedly illegally spent by the state was incorporated today as a permanent organization under the name of the Citizens Vigilance Committee of Ohio.

Inviting public membership and contributions, the committee announced its purpose was "to gather facts respecting expenditure of public funds, to prosecute unlawful practices concerning state funds, and to urge amendments to laws which open the way for improper practices"

Incorporators listed in the secretary of state's office were S. P. Bush, retired Columbus industrialist, Preston Davis, official of a Columbus publishing house, and Walter T. Dickerson, another Columbus businessman.

The committee was formed originally to assist Mrs Agnes B. Dickinson, attorney, in her taxpayer suits brought on the basis of revelations by the senate graft investigating committee.

It asked for general public support and for contributions of $5 and up from applicants for membership.

Announces Aims.

The committee's announcement said that besides its interest in pending taxpayer suits, it would concern itself with:

"Revelations concerning extensive indicated pillage of the public's money and unlawful practices carried on within the highway and liquor control departments.

"The fact that the highway departments which spends $35,000,000 or more annually, has made but one financial report since 1917, although required by law to do so annually.

"The fact that no one has known whether these funds are properly expended.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

THE children's garden is just across the lane from mine. As I hoe my row of corn I can see Sister, 11 and Sonny, 7, trying out a new scheme on the wheelhoe. They have a long rope attached to the front, like a followed by interesting, bulgy

Within this, his bare brown shoulders bent to the task, Son plays pony, while Sister guides and pushes the cultivator down the row The game works well for quite a while . . . . and they taunt me that their work will be sooner done than mine

Between them they have divided a plot of ground about ten steps each way, and have seeded half of it to Hubbard squashes They intend to plant the remainder to cucumbers, and they tell me that they hope to reap two bicycles, or if they have even half a crop, one bicycle, perhaps will do Their optimism is invigorating, and far be it from me to discourage them

Son had a garden last summer. It was planted late and the frost came too soon for all of his pie pumpkins to ripen Still, the little boy hoed them through the summer, and had the joy of furnishing Thanksgiving and Christmas pies from his very own bin, not only at home but to several friends and relatives.

There is a huge satisfaction to a child in planting seeds that are large and easily seen, that do not need to be sown in stingy cramped rows, but can be assembled wide apart, in impressive rounded hills. When the plants begin to show, it is pleasant to see wide leaves and sturdy, sizeable vines, with brilliant, showy, yellow blossoms—followed by interesting, bulgy knobs as the fruit matures.

And when harvest time comes, and a child can go to his garden and gather long, tender slicers, or whited knotty squashes or golden-orange pumpkins—that is a proud and never-forgotten time

The habit of providing food for the enjoyment of the family, or for his own profit, should be, to my mind a real part of every child's education. And older members of the family should not fail to appreciate youthful efforts

I believe in gardens for children

GROWING TOBACCO AS I DO— I'VE LEARNED FROM PERSONAL EXPERIENCE THAT CAMEL BUYS FINER TOBACCOS. MANY'S THE TIME THEY'VE PAID ME MORE TO GET MY FINEST LOTS. MOST OF US PLANTERS PREFER CAMELS. I'VE BEEN A STEADY CAMEL SMOKER FOR 8 YEARS NOW, AND I'LL SAY CAMEL'S CHOICE TOBACCOS SURE MAKE A LOT OF DIFFERENCE IN SMOKING

CECIL CLAYBOURNE, who knows tobacco quality as only a grower can

THERE surely is a big difference between Camels and other cigarettes — a lot more real smoking enjoyment — when men like Mr. Claybourne, who know tobacco because they grow it, say: "Most of us planters are steady Camel smokers." He gives you a convincing explanation of the difference — CAMEL'S FINER, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS.

"WE SMOKE CAMELS BECAUSE WE KNOW TOBACCO"

5,000 JOIN TO DEDICATE PARK

'Dreams Come True' as City's Newest Recreation Center Is Formally Opened.

opening of the park there should be a memorial to one who was noted for sportsmanship, particularly in this community. This is an inspiration to all who might come here."

Speaking for his family, John Fisch, jr., brother of the football star, said, "on behalf of everyone who loved Frankie, we deeply appreciate everything that has been done here today."

The monument, a huge boulder at the base of the park flag pole, bears a bronze tablet with the following inscription:

"His fine sportsmanship, courage and sterling character made him outstanding among his fellowmen. Dedicated June 5, 1938."

Planes Fly Over Park.

The monument was built with funds contributed by admirers of the late athlete. Three army planes, one piloted by James Zimmerman, member of the Earl McVey post, American Legion, were flown over the park during the memorial ceremonies. The other pilots were Capt. Thomas Lowe and Lieut. Morehouse, both of Columbus.

In dedicating the flag pole to the Liberty Park association, L. A. Cook, commander of the McVey post, American Legion, compared the flag pole to the common people who help to elevate the statesmen to their places of importance.

"The pole," he said, "is necessary to bring the American flag to its proper place."

C. O. Lister, chairman of the Legion's memorial committee, hoisted a six by 10-foot flag, the gift of the Daughters of Union Veterans, to the top of the pole while the Legion buglers played "To The Colors." The Mansfield Senior high school band played "The Star Spangled Banner" to close the flag-raising ceremonies.

The flag was presented by Mrs. D. D. Orewiler, representing the Daughters of Union Veterans.

National Guard Parades.

Nearly 400 members of the 134th field artillery, Ohio National Guards, who were encamped at the rear of Liberty park over the week-end, paraded through the city to start the dedication service. The parade which traveled from the Legion home on Park avenue west to the park, was headed by the McVey post, American Legion, drum corps.

With James Brownscombe as master of ceremonies, a number of city and parks officials were introduced from the platform at the park.

Among those who spoke or were introduced were Mayor C. M. Hunter, Service-Safety Director Tracy Styert, James Herlihy, superintendent of the city waterworks department, Fred Miller, Fifth ward councilman; R. E. Vaughn, president of Public Parks association, George Marshall, president of the Liberty Park association; James F. Carrigan, general chairman of the dedication committee; C. O. Lister, and L. A. Cook, who represented the American Legion, and Frank Mitsch, jr., head of the dedication program committee.

The invocation was given by Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church and chaplain of the McVey post, American Legion.

Concerts by the Mansfield high school band, the Prospect park band and the Madison township high band at intervals during the afternoon and evening, a diving exhibition in the park pool and tennis matches topped off the dedication ceremonies.

The diving exhibition featured comedy acts by Russell Von Weider, superintendent of the park swimming pool, and Bradford Smith, and exhibitions by Eddie McVehil, of Canton, state diving champion, and Tony Schadek, Mansfield, former North Central Ohio league champion.

Tennis matches, arranged by Vic Alderson, brought city net champions into action.

In the tennis exhibitions, Andrew Meldrum of Cleveland defeated Clark Waid, also of Cleveland, 6-2 6-8 6-3. Naomi Grandon was leading Louis Baughman and the doubles combination of Thornton Moore and Warner Peterson was ahead of Bob Enos and W. E. Slabaugh when darkness halted play.

Sold at sheriff's sale Saturday at the courthouse, a property at 158 Sturges avenue, was purchased by Mrs. Mary Butler, Mansfield, for $3,200. The house and lot had been appraised at $4,500 and was sold on a foreclosure judgment obtained against Charles E. Kissell and others by John F. Kramer for the estate of the late Lewis Yearling.

Charles Seaman, defendant in a partition action brought by Alice Maring, bought 11 acres in Bloominggrove township for $3,700 or $100 above the appraisal.

40 V. F. W. Posts Pick Candidates at District Parley.

BUCYRUS—Representatives of 40 Veterans of Foreign Wars posts, including the Mansfield post, endorsed candidates for national, district and state offices Sunday at a district conference here.

The group passed a resolution backing John Hylant, Cleveland, for state commander of the veterans' organization; W. J. Fulton, of Upper Sandusky, for district commander, J. H. Deemer, Loram, for national chaplain, and George Kistner, Sandusky, for re-election as quartermaster adjutant.

Urging the veterans to unite in defense of American institutions, Joseph Heffernan, assistant attorney general, said.

"America today faces the greatest crisis in her history. There are two forces we must resist—one the prospect of aggression from without; the other, disintegration from within."

"We are dominated today by things even though they are hideous and scream forth their wares like barkers at circus sideshows. Fashion dictates mean more to some than the training of the truth. Beautiful faces are made by beautiful souls, not rouge or face powder. Fashion dictates no matter how foolish it is."

The speaker pointed out that in spite of the lewd pictures found on our magazine covers today and the more suggestive pictures within the covers, that the graduates should keep their minds and bodies fine and clean.

"Live clean and pure, and get away from these things that will destroy," he advised.

"When we are truly educated we care for the better part. An education is not to give us a living, but to help us live."

Answering the question, "What is the better part?" Rev. Swoyer said "Seek and know God and seek the better things."

The service opened with the record class, attired in the caps and gowns, marching into the church auditorium. The class occupied the greater part of the main floor of the auditorium. Members of the high school faculty were seated behind the class.

Music during the service was furnished by the church choir directed by L. A. Cook.

THE MANSFIELD NEWS AND MANSFIELD JOURNAL

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

The Mansfield News Founded by W. S. Cappeller, March 7, 1885. Published Daily Except Sunday by Mansfield Journal Co. Office: Fourth and Walnut, Mansfield, Ohio. Phone Canal 4251.

MONDAY, JUNE 6, 1938.

It's the uncertainties of baseball that make the game so interesting—like those Cleveland Indians.

A Cape Cod town wants a lifeguard "who can swim"—which indicates that the job is being taken out of politics.

Yes, there will probably be some of those roadside fireworks stands just outside of the city limits, for the benefit of parents who do not want their children to be deprived of the right to have their fingers blown off or their eyes blinded.

Liberty Park Dedication.

FEW occasions in Mansfield's history have better served to exemplify the civic spirit that pervades this city than did the dedication of Liberty park yesterday afternoon, with its associated ceremonies of flag-raising and dedication of a monument to the memory of one of Mansfield's young athletes.

Ideally situated in the northeast section of Mansfield, Liberty park with the natural beauty of its rolling terrain augmented by attractive landscaping, becomes of immediate value as a fine recreation center and gives promise of gaining in beauty with each passing year.

Like all worthwhile things that have come to Mansfield, Liberty park represents the culmination of what started out originally as the idea of a few people.

It was through the interest, enthusiasm and determination of these few that additional supporters were attracted to the project, land acquired and funds made available for development of the park.

Yesterday's ceremonies could not have failed to be an inspiration to all who attended—many hundreds of adults and children gathered about the speakers stand or on the surrounding grass-covered slopes.

A serious tone mingled with the joy of accomplishment that was evidenced in the dedicatory program, with a definite note of patriotism introduced by presentation of a fine large flag which was raised on a lofty new pole as the Star Spangled Banner was being played and the entire assemblage stood at attention, with hats doffed.

With its various facilities for outdoor sports and recreation, Liberty park will meet a need of thousands of Mansfield children and adults—and will possibly give impetus to the city-wide park improvement program which has been allowed to lag during the past few years.

It also serves to convincingly demonstrate that Mansfield is a city in which things can be done—when people start out to do them.

Looking Toward Graduation.

THIS will be a busy—and interesting—week for the 287 members of the Mansfield high school graduating class.

Social activities preceding graduation are largely out of the way. The baccalaureate address was heard last evening and only a few days remain until final words are said and diplomas awarded next Thursday evening.

High school graduation is one of the memorable occasions in life—an event that should be made as pleasurable as possible.

It marks, in a way, the turning point between childhood and maturity—coming at an age when greater responsibilities must be almost immediately assumed.

The twelve years of schooling, between the ages of six and eighteen, cover a highly important period in character-building as well as in educational progress, and, in most instances, will have a considerable bearing on the future of each boy and girl who is now being graduated.

It will be the wish of their many interested friends that each of the graduates retain pleasant memories of incidents associated with their final days in school.

Faith In Business.

BUSINESS can't wait for a nation to change its mind," said George T. Trundle, jr., president of the Trundle Engineering company, to a civic club the other day.

"Business must contrive to go ahead, in spite of present circumstances, if it is going to survive at all.

"Some people must have faith enough to spend the money necessary to pay workmen to make things that people want and to put these things on the market. Consumers cannot start trade. It must be started by producers."

More companies are making profits today than is generally realized, Trundle added. They are doing so "because their executives are not worrying about the future of the nation, but about themselves and their own business and are getting down to work to keep their companies alive."

More and more business leaders are coming to see that mere changes in political administrations will not get people over the troubles which beset the whole world. Fear congests and freezes. Courage and faith loosen up the economic as well as the human muscles. Action steadies the mind. Business needs action and faith.

Playing Tricks With Clocks

PUBLIC attitude toward time is nearly as hard to understand as Einstein's theories on the subject. Consider the weird things people do with clocks.

There is the legislative custom of stopping the clock when it is clear that a session is going to run beyond the day and hour set for adjournment. With the clock stopped, legislators appear to say, time itself stops, and the session can drag on for hours or even weeks and still be ended on schedule. A delegate to the New York state constitutional convention has suggested that this custom be prohibited there, but it will take more than one effort to end the practice generally.

Then there is daylight saving time. A lot of people discovered a few years ago that the morning hours are pleasant and that it is also a delight to have more daylight left after the day's work is done. It didn't seem possible simply to get up earlier or to start business earlier, so the movement arose for turning clocks ahead in the spring and back in the fall.

Widespread as that practice has become, there are still strenuous objections to it year after year.

Papa Dionne says the quintuplets will never smoke with his permission—where does he get that stuff, "permission"?

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

Actually, conditions are not as black as they seem. ("Oh, yes?" cries the man without a job.) No, they are not. The turn may be here.

Bond financing in June is the highest in 12 months, and much of that is "new" money for developments—private, state, municipal. The actual sum—according to the Wall Street Journal—will be close to 300 million dollars for the month. In addition, the federal government will refund $618,000,000 of treasury notes falling due.

The government could borrow billions at an exceptionally low rate now, but does not need the cash.

Best of all, however, is the fact that inventories, stocks in hand, are dwindling to low marks. This cannot go on indefinitely. The turn may come suddenly in this. Once somebody begins necessity buying, "everybody" may join.

Then, too, crops will be near the greatest on record, if the weather holds out. Although prices have plunged, nevertheless good crops may bring in considerable cash. And it is possible that if prices go low enough sale of farm products will develop into a real boom. Agriculture remains the basic business of America. It is agriculture that keeps not only implement factories, but auto plants and steel mills going. And it is agriculture, too, that can pull the railroads out of the hole.

When can such a revival in business be expected? Well, the Wall Street Journal says (because that is the opinion in some major financial quarters):

"A settlement of price uncertainties, a fairly satisfactory state of farm purchasing power and some ultimately expensive assistance through public works outlay may well be expected to produce a business situation for the late summer or fall, contrasting rather sharply with what we have just now."

* * *

U. S. TREASURY

In the meantime, the U. S. treasury is not borrowing money as people believed it would have to several months ago.

Why?

Security and unemployment tax levies are furnishing a large part of the cash needed.

In May, the treasury's total revenues were $475,000,000. Social Security taxes brought in $104,000,000, unemployment insurance $120,000,000.

Thus government bonds advance to a higher premium. The June 15 financing is confined to the refunding of $618,000,000 of treasury notes falling due, but $250,000,000 of special treasury bills falling due at the same time are being paid in cash out of tax collections.

Interest rates on high-grade securities continue to decline. There is a plethora of money. Everything "Grade A" is oversubscribed.

* * *

NEXT YEAR

Next year is expected to be a fairly good one. But, of course, no permanent cure has been effected. If next year isn't a good one, there is a possibility that the country may be frightened into getting at fundamentals.

The year 1940 also may be good, in spite of a terrific political battle between the conservatives and the liberals for control of the presidency and congress. Everything possible will be done by the conservatives to eliminate President Roosevelt prior to 1940, to prevent a stampede to him for a third term. Usually, such efforts boomerang. Perhaps they may be more subtle this time.

THE VOICE OF EXPERIENCE

Congress Pushing Toward Finish

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — With one ear cocked at Europe, where an explosion would throw all Washington plans askew, and with an eye to fences that badly need mending back home, congress will push rapidly to adjournment. President Roosevelt's determination to force the reorganization bill through, and thus acquire complete authority to reshuffle the government bureaus between now and the opening of the January session of the next congress, melted under the prospect of more hamstringing of his power to determine just where the three-billion-plus recovery funds should be spent.

Senators who had been determined to talk the reorganization bill to death since the announcement that it would be revived, began the attack without waiting for its submission. They began a barrage on the recovery bill. The country began to take notice of the possible menace in giving the president so much power to pick and choose where the money should be spent.

His right bower on spending, Harry L. Hopkins, threw all the insurgent senators into an uproar with his endorsement of a pro-New Dealer against a sitting senator. This made ammunition to shoot at the whole recovery program, which meant that unless some Jonah could be thrown overboard the debate would run through the summer. Most important of all, the senate speeches were getting reactions out in the country. They are probably the most damaging to White House prestige that have been aroused since the widespread opposition to supreme court packing.

* * *

CRITICS calling the giant appropriation measure the "relief and re-election bill" proved the straw to this particular camel's back. Roosevelt called in his leaders, stressed the necessity of getting through the recovery bill without much more talk, and accepted their judgment that the only way to do this was to postpone reorganization until "early next winter."

Wage-hour regulation's progress is expedited also by the rush to go home that followed, especially as the Southerners are now practically assured of differentials to protect their section. This is a tremendous gain for the New Deal, as every one admits if the bill had to start from scratch it could not get to first base. The powerful aid of William Green in getting the bill out of its tomb in the house could not be gotten again if the A.F.L. high command had known the final text would contain differentials. But the curious legislative course, though long drawn out, has finally gotten the measure past all the hitherto unreconcilable viewpoints.

* * *

WITH the ball rolling, and with personal desires and fears on the part of individual congressmen urging haste, the president cracks the whip, insisting that the need for relief is now, and is much greater than he anticipated when he sent his first message asking for this bill six weeks ago. Then he thought next winter would be the crucial time. Need for speed in pump-priming has increased enormously in the month and a half elapsed.

Roosevelt also realizes that the effects on congressional docility of the Florida primaries is subsiding. Especially as in the run-off primary in Florida, since the victor won on the Townsend plan, an issue which some congressmen now think was probably as important as pro and anti-New Deal was in the victory of Senator Claude Pepper.

Reactions to the debate on giving Roosevelt so much power on the spending, and quiet confidence that every one of the insurgent senators will survive the "purge" contribute to this more independent attitude. Nor is the administration any too confident of beating Senator Guy M. Gillette in Iowa on June 6. Whereas a win by Gillette would boost the spirits and loosen the tongues of the "antis" amazingly.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

No Time for Hate.

I HAD a friend who hated nobody.

He used to tell me that he didn't, and I know he spoke the truth.

I watched him closely, and I'm not trying to tell you that he liked or loved everybody he knew. He wasn't sweet or soft, be sure of that.

My friend was a man of discrimination, a good judge of human nature. He had lived long, had battled fiercely; and he knew people outside in and inside out, and had preferences among people as he had with food or weather and everything else but dogs. (He liked all dogs).

But actually he did not HATE anybody. He saw inside of them. When you might have thought he should be hating a person I found him only slightly annoyed or even amused. Or, most terrible revenge of all, he was being sorry for them.

They rarely knew he was sorry for them. If they'd known, they'd have been enraged. Because, after all, most of us would far rather be hated than pitied. We're somebody, imposing and definite, when we are hated. But pity shrinks us, puts on the defensive, belittles us more than we can endure.

Sometimes my friend annoyed those who knew him. They had developed a nice clean rage against a man or woman who was friendly to him . . . a righteous and unselfish anger . . . and then discovered they were merely wasting their fulminations. They were MAD, but he wasn't. He was far away from the hurly-burly, attending to his own affairs in his own fashion. . . . It was most distressing and they told him as much and he laughed at them.

He didn't see why he should be wasting any part of his life in hating when there were so many other things he preferred to do. He'd quit hating years before and advised them to follow his example. . . . Because hatred, he said, sends the blood pressure up and gives you a sick feeling. When you're angry you make a spectacle of yourself and people laugh at you.

That's what my friend said and he was right. I can't live up to his ideas. I'm not as wise, nor as strong, as he. But between my righteous angers I wish I could be as sane as he—though I know I shall never be.

Science Proves Horn-Tooter To Be Public Menace

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

NOW THAT the weather permits and even demands that the windows be open, the time has come to turn the guns not only of anger, but of scientific proof, on the oaf who sits in traffic and pounds on the horn of his auto.

"The horn driver"—I think a definition should be applied to this nuisance—that type of human being who, deprived of all vestiges of the higher nervous centers, thinks he can get ahead by making a noise. He can see just as well as the driver at the head of the line that the red light is on and nobody can move until the signals switch. But just as soon as he comes to rest, his hand automatically is thrown on the tooter and he toots and toots until motion starts. Is there a truck in the way, stopped because it is stalled? He knows perfectly well that the driver cannot get it out of his way for a minute or two. But that does not faze him. He slams the palm down on the horn and blows and blows his asinine head off, while the poor unfortunate truck driver is being driven nearly to distraction trying to get his motor started.

Deafness: In noisy industrial employments it is not unusual to find as many as 50 per cent with some degree of impairment of hearing.

Blood pressure: Taking the same groups, high blood pressure is twice as common as in control groups.

Nervousness: Nervous disorders amounting to insanity are touched off by noise as a determining factor.

What is noise? Noise is a discordant, unmusical, confused, irksome or disturbing sound. Like horn driver, horn sounding, dish washing, singing in the bath tub, operating an elevator in a hospital, or racing a motor cycle. The reason these sounds are so disagreeable is that the ear is most sensitive to a range of frequency of sounds from 1,000 to 5,000 cycles per second. The limits of the ear's sensitiveness are from 16 to 22,000 cycles per second. You can see that singing in the bath tub is definitely below 22,000 and about 16 about 1,000 to 5,000, as a matter of fact.

Plenty of Evidence.

There is plenty of scientific evidence upon which to base objections to noise. Popoff placed white mice in a factory where hot steel bars were hammered into scythes, the sound frequencies were from 60 to 3,000 cycles per second. One group of mice was placed in a cage on the floor, another in a cage suspended from the ceiling by means of a spring.

After 20 days the mice were humanely killed (it must have been a relief); the ears of the ones in the cage on the floor showed a destruction of the basilar membrane of the organ of hearing.

Those of my fellow humans who are sensitive to horn drivers may well take a lesson from these mice. We should be empowered by some court to arrest all horn drivers we meet, with the agreement that on the bare word of the objector, the court will sentence the horn driver to jail for five years.

Young America Asks---

Are Modern Youths Parasites?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ARE MOST YOUNG AMERICANS SPOILED, CONCEITED, SPINELESS, UNGRATEFUL W-O-R-M-S? Says spunky young Mary Mihalokis of San Francisco, Cal. . . . "THEY ARE AND I DON'T MEAN MAYBE!"

Whew! That's some slam, Mary! Wonder what the rest of the Crowd will feel about it.

"Dear Elsie Robinson—

"Strength of character, courage, loyalty and determination are so rare among the younger generation that it requires a 200-inch telescope to find them!

"They are simply parasites, these wilful, selfish, unappreciative brats who cling like leeches to their already overburdened parents!

"Those same parents were not frightened by hardship when they were youngsters, or newly-weds. They expected tough going—took it on the chin—felt that no sacrifice was too great to make for their old folks and new babies.

"Now those babies have become young men and women. Mother and Dad have given them the best years of their lives—made every sacrifice, including health, so their children could have the advantages they missed. Yet when the weary, aging parents turn to them expecting gratitude and a little help, what does Youth say?

" 'Aw! What do you want me to do! (groan) I've troubles of my own; don't bother me!'

"The situation is outrageous!"

"Mary Mihalokis—age 20,
"San Francisco, Calif."
($10 prize winner)

* * *

THAT'S a fine, sincere letter Mary, and I'm sure we'll all applaud its motive. But I doubt if Young America is quite as wormish as you depict. However, there may be many who won't agree with me. So how about it, Everybody—Mom and Dad as well as Bub and Sis. What's YOUR opinion?

IS THE YOUNGER GENERATION A BUNCH OF BLOODSUCKERS? Let's hear! And while you're at it, give your answer to the following poser:

"IS THE AVERAGE AMERICAN STUDENT TRAINED TO MEET THE ACTUAL PROBLEMS OF THIS MODERN WORLD, OR ARE THEY MERELY PREPARED TO BE "TEXT BOOK CITIZENS?"

There's a question which might well come from some white-haired sage—yet its author is a fifteen-year-old girl, little Margie Keberlein of Salinas, Calif. Go to it, little sister—and cheers for you!

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"Are we—the future American voters—to be 'text book' citizens?

"In school today we study the past. We read about what Washington and Lincoln and other great figures of history did in times of stress and doubt; we study the struggles the past generations made to build our nation. But I think it much more important to learn about present-day problems.

"I admit, we are instructed how to vote, to study the ballot, weigh propositions and choose representatives—but does all of this really tell us how to cope with the real problems which our generation must solve? Will we be able to safeguard our nation and control its destiny.

"I believe it to be a fact that there is hardly a single high school senior who is acquainted with the problems of the outside world. Yet—presumably—for 12 years we have been trained in good citizenship."

Margie Keberlein, age 15,
Salinas, Calif.
($10 prize winner)

WILLIAM VOLKERS of Martinez, Calif., another far Westerner, gives a bit of sound advice to Uncle Sam and wins one of those handy prizes. Good stuff, Bill!

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"I BELIEVE THAT THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD TAKE A FIRMER HAND IN THE REGULATION OF BUSINESS.

"Since the world's troubles are largely economic, touching upon problems of production of raw materials, markets, prices, etc., I feel we should concentrate on the solution of these economic problems. Business gives little thought to political emergencies arising as the result of its profit-seeking activities. Therefore it is up to the government to assume more authority in situations where our industries endanger international good-will.

"For instance, more rigid supervision by the government of industries supplying war materials would materially lessen the influence of those interested only in the profits of war.

"Abroad, we should not support the nationalistic aims of other countries, but rather, back wholeheartedly any plan designed to benefit the nations of the world as a whole."

Timely Editorial

Meddling About Loyalty.

Dr. Charles F. Wishart, president of the College of Wooster, makes a timely criticism of both the absurdity and the peril of insistence upon loyalty oaths for teachers. In an address to the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A., he speaks effectively for an academic freedom untrammeled by such restrictions.

To the argument that a teacher "ought" to be willing to profess such loyalty, Dr. Wishart makes this convincing answer: "Just why a teacher should be compelled to make oath of his patriotism, rather than the preacher, the radio performer, the newspaper editor, the actor or the political stump speaker, does not seem to have penetrated the mind of the average state legislator."

But the more serious objection, as Dr. Wishart states, is not the "unfair singling out of one class," but the danger that such a requirement may be the "opening wedge" making possible a situation where "loyalty" will be interpreted, not in the light of the constitutional guarantee of free speech, but in the light of the particular meaning read into that document by a Fascist-minded legislator."

It is not necessary to look very far around the world to see the force of Dr. Wishart's warning.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The activities of Mr. Adolf Hitler in his endeavor to assemble the German minorities in European countries under the third Reich, if successful, would present an interesting if complex situation in New York. For Gotham is the second largest German city in the world, bowing only to Berlin itself in the number of citizens with German Blood.

Say, for the sake of argument, then, that he succeeds and that, by some strange hokus-pokus even the Manhattan minority is included in his plans. That would leave a huge chunk of this town goosestepping to and from their offices.

Meanwhile, New York also happens to be the largest Italian city in the world. There are more Italians here even than in Rome. And if Mussolini were to get the same idea and cluck to the Roman minorities, we'd have another fine set-up of Fascists, cluttering the elevators and the subway trains with black shirts.

The Irish, as you may have heard, constitute a vast part of New York's seven millions, and if the Free State likewise started weaning the Irish minorities away from Mr. LaGuardia and Washington, why, that would give the Spaniards an idea, which in turn might inspire the Russians to reach across the sea and do a little special controlling.

* * *

IN THE end it would amount to New York's being governed by about twenty nations. There are 40 or 50 thousand Frenchmen in New York. There are hundreds of thousands of Jews, thousands of Poles, a lot of Scandinavians plus a goodly group of Dutch; there are Assyrians, Lettes, Lascars, Chinese, Japanese, Gypsies, Moors, Latins from all the South American republics, Rumanians, Hungarians, Arabs, English, Scotch, Canadians, Hawaiians—in fact, it's the largest and most complete international settlement in the world.

With all these conflicting religious and political credos jostling each other, another "little World war" might break out.

This won't happen of course, but in the minds of a lot of people this is what unofficially has taken place. I mean the German-American Bund, etc., has caused a widespread belief among outsiders that New York, really, is a rallying ground for alien causes.

* * *

IT IS true that a large number of German-Americans are enrolled in some sort of gray-shirt organization, and they hold meetings in Yorkville which occasionally are marked by violence, but for the most part the Italians and the Poles and the Irish do their fighting man to man, in a personal way, and Mussolini and DeValera are strictly out of the picture. And after the fighting they often as not go off arm in arm and drown their differences in steaming bowls of spaghetti or cornbeef and cabbage. That's the way we do things in New York.

CHAPTER XXIII

Oglebay appreciated the frankness of his former employe's letter and was deeply sorry that things had not turned out more nearly to Clay's satisfaction. He believed that he appreciated the situation, but he would consider it from every angle before making a move. Business conditions were very unsatisfactory and if a man had a job he would do well to hold on to it, for the time being at least. Oglebay would be pleased, should conditions warrant it later on, to have Clay back with them. But, at the present time, there was nothing he could offer. In fact, the firm was forced to reduce its staff from time to time.

"And that would seem to be that," Clay sighed to himself, as he folded the letter and thrust it in his pocket. "Come in," he said, not too graciously, as a light tap sounded on his door.

It was Olive Case.

"I wasn't sure you were alone," she began smilingly. "But I wanted to ask you about a letter." She held it up.

"Yes?"

"Why, it came to me for filing, but it didn't have your initials on it and I wasn't sure it had been to your desk. I'm so worried for fear I won't do something right that I didn't want to take a chance."

"My error," Clay admitted resignedly. "I saw it. There you are."

"Oh, thank you! Is everything going all right, Mr. Odell?"

Wonderfully well, Miss Case."

"Now you are kidding, I know. I meant was my work all right."

"So far as I know. Anytime that it isn't, you will probably hear."

"I'm still scared pink. Have you seen Larry lately?"

"Not recently, that I recall."

"You know, the poor kid is simply combing the town trying to find work. She didn't tell me, but I know she's been everywhere. It makes me feel positively guilty, really I mean."

"That's quite too bad," Clay admitted between his set teeth "Was there anything else you wished to take up with me?"

Muriel Layne, keeping house for the afternoon, was using the kitchen table for cutting a dress pattern when there came a sharp tapping at the front door With an almost impatient exclamation, she waited only long enough to glance at her hair in the mirror over the sink and went to answer the summons.

In the front hall, she gave a little gasp and untied her apron strings feverishly On the other side of the screen door was Mr. Romulus Wardlaw, peering from under the pulled-down brim of his worn panama. Several thoughts flashed through Muriel's mind as she traversed the short length of the hall. Strangely enough, the first was what the neighbors would think. Mr. Odell's car parked in front twice of late ....now, Mr Wardlaw's sedan and chauffeur

"Good afternoon," she said a trifle breathlessly

"How do you do...." Romulus peered even more intently It was apparent that he was not altogether sure whom he was addressing. "I was looking for Miss Layne," he explained. "Miss Hilary Layne"

A little rush of excitement came to Muriel, it showed in her face and words. There was but one explanation. Mr. Wardlaw wanted Larry to come back to work!"

"Oh, I'm sorry!" she exclaimed. "Hilary is not here just now, but I look for her almost any time. My mother is out, too"

"I see. You must be an older sister....you young folks have a way of growing up that is hard for us older people to keep pace with."

"Is there any message I may give my sister for you?"

"Umm...m. I'm not so sure there mightn't be!"

"Won't you walk in, Mr. Wardlaw?"

"Well, for a minute."

* * *

Seated in an easy chair, Romulus scanned the simple, but attractive furnishings of the little livingroom with an air of interest.

"A great many years since I was in this house," he observed. "Your father used to work for me. A long time." His dark eyes fastened themselves on Muriel's attentive face.

"I know," she said gently.

"I remember, now, there were three of you children. I believe your brother works at the mill."

"Yes, sir. He does."

"And what do you do?"

"I teach school, Mr. Wardlaw."

"To be sure. Miss Layne..." He stared at her closely. "You look like a very level-headed sort of woman. I'm a very busy man. I think it is just possible that I might discuss my errand with you. Get it done with."

Muriel felt her heart sink. Could it be that another blow was to fall....Griff? But no. Mr. Wardlaw wouldn't come to the house about anything like that. It must be something about Larry.

"You may tell me, if you wish," she answered with quiet dignity.

"I believe I will. You should be able to understand. It has to do with my nephew, Mr. Odell. And your sister."

"Excuse me," Muriel begged, a faint flush coming into her pale cheeks. "If it is a personal matter....like that....I would prefer you discussed it with my sister. Or my mother, if you would rather."

"I didn't come here to discuss anything, Miss. I merely want to express my view about a matter and say what I want done. I happen to know that my nephew and your sister have been seeing a good deal of each other. It's something that I am forced, quite against my wish, to put a stop to before it goes any further. No... be good enough not to interrupt me.

"I don't usually take anyone into my confidence regarding my personal affairs and I am making this exception only because I do not wish to be misunderstood. I have taken Mr. Odell into my business in a substantial way. I am training him in my methods so that, in time, he can relieve me much of my responsibilities. It is an opportunity that is not given to many men of his age and experience. I believe that I am quite within my rights when I object to his attentions being diverted from his work by an affair that I am convinced means little or nothing Your age and your experience as a teacher will, I am sure, make you agree with me that these young interests are not serious. Puppy love, I believe they call it."

* * *

The flush in Muriel's cheeks faded. A pained expression showed in her brown eyes. But her voice was perfectly calm as she replied:

"I understand your attitude quite clearly, Mr. Wardlaw."

"I thought you would. Between ourselves, Clayton is a trifle impetuous. He needs a guiding hand now and then. It is quite absurd to think that either of these two could have formed any serious attachment in the short time they have known each other. That is why I want to see an end put to it before anything serious develops. I have tried to hint as much to my nephew."

"By discharging my sister from her position in your office," Muriel furnished. A distinct chill was in her usually mild voice.

"Well, yes, since you have brought it up Perhaps you do not know that he planned to take her into his private office as some sort of an assistant. A preposterous idea! You must be able to imagine what that would have done to the morale of my office ....the talk it would have started, not to mention the constant distraction from business it would have been to a young man like my nephew. Quite absurd. You must agree with me."

"I might," was the measured answer, "if I did not also know that you were in ignorance of Mr. Odell's plan when you asked my sister to leave And I believe you sent word that she might return." Muriel waited for her words to take effect, before she added with cool sweetness· "You see I am considerably older than my sister and I am rather in her confidence. So is my mother. Our family is like that"

* * *

Romulus was distinctly nettled at this turn of affairs

"Then your family had best get together on this proposition and do the sensible thing," he snapped.

"I am quite sure, Mr Wardlaw, that you can trust us not to embarrass you. If it is not asking too much, am I to give my sister to understand that you came with this message at Mr. Odell's request?"

"No, no! I have not told him ....as yet. I'm not accustomed to asking advice when I arrange personal matters. You can make it plain to your sister, however, that Mr. Odell will be governed by my wishes. He may be headstrong, but he's not an utter fool I am only afraid that he may delay breaking the acquaintance through some chivalrous notion that he might wound the young lady's feelings. It would all end more satisfactory if she were to take the initiative. She cannot very well fail to appreciate the situation."

"And if she were to?"

"Then I would conclude she might be cherishing some objective. I can readily realize that my nephew is attractive. If it has not already been conjectured that his prospects are attractive, it will be. When the time comes for him to make an alliance, I shall give him the benefit of my advice. Have I made myself clear?"

Muriel rose quickly to her feet

"Oh, very!" she exclaimed "Clear that you are both stupid and contemptible! I don't know what personal regard my sister may have formed for Mr. Odell. None, I trust. I should hate to think that she could be even mildly interested in anyone who had any claim upon you!"

"Look here, young woman!" Romulus lifted himself from his chair and stood leaning heavily on his cane. "I won't listen to such talk from anybody! I...."

"Oh, yes you will! For once," Muriel hurried on breathlessly. "I'm not a child. I've known what it was to love someone.... dearly. Just because you have lived an unhappy, unloved life.... you think that you can do as you like with others' lives. Oh, I.... I pity you! Please go"

* * *

During Romulus Wardlaw's call, the unsuspecting Larry was engaged in what she called, "doing the other side of Main Street" As before, her quest for employment roused nothing more tangible than polite interest and she was hard put to it to keep up enough courage to face her family with the show of indifference she considered essential.

When she entered the front hall, a glance into the living room caused her to forget her depression There was Mrs. Layne, her hat still on, seated beside Muriel who was lying on the couch. The latter's eyes were swollen with weeping and a sodden handkerchief was pressed against her mouth.

"For Pete's sake!" Larry exclaimed hurrying forward, snatching off her hat. "What's the matter? Thought you were staying at home today to make a dress.."

A fresh outburst of sobbing was the only answer. Mrs. Layne laid a hand on Muriel's forehead, raised her troubled eyes to Larry's.

"She's had a sort....sort of shock. I'll have to tell you, dear. It was about you...."

"Now what have I done?"

"Hush, Larry....nothing like that. The poor child was here alone this afternoon. Old Mr. Wardlaw called. He wanted to see you.... and he told Muriel what he wanted. I only wish I had been here'" Mrs. Layne compressed her soft lips. "It was outrageous."

Larry's gray eyes widened.

"Old Rommy here to see me?" she questioned unbelievingly. "What...." She drew a low stool to the couch and seated herself.

Mrs. Layne found it difficult to begin with her girl's clear eyes fixed upon her own. "It's about Mr. Yodel and..."

"Let me guess," Larry interrupted in a tense little voice. Rommy's afraid I have designs on his precious nephew and he dropped in to ask me if I wouldn't just as soon stop. Am I right or ...right?"

ARMY INCLUDES MEXICO IN ITS SECRET DEFENSE PLANS

Last In A Series.

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

(AP Feature Service Writer)

WASHINGTON—Protection of Mexico against military invasion is an important part of secret plans for defense of the United States

For more than a century our southern neighbor—rich in resources but poor in cash—has been relying for security upon two points, its geographical isolation from expansion-minded nations, and U. S. maintenance of the Monroe Doctrine.

That reliance is bolstered by the belief, widely held in official circles of both countries, that Uncle Sam could not afford to allow an armed invasion of his "backyard" because of its threat to the safety of this country. U S. defense strategists constantly have in mind the possibility of an attempted surprise attack by way of Mexico

From 400 years ago—when Cortez subdued Mexico—to the present day, nations hungry for resources have cast covetous eyes on "the treasure house of the world" Tremendously rich in minerals, oil and water-power possibilities, Mexico would be rated tempting pickings for a power, or combination of powers, bent on territorial expansion in the western hemisphere.

It Happened—Once.

For only one brief period in the last century did Mexico fall under foreign military and political domination—the regime of Austria's Archduke Maximilian, set up as emperor of Mexico with the aid of Napoleon III during our Civil war.

But as soon as the war was ended, the United States punctured Napoleon's dream of a French colonial empire in Central America by forcing withdrawal of the French troops from Mexico under threat that a veteran Union army would be sent, if necessary, to drive them out

Again in 1912 the United States uttered a "hands off" Mexico notice The Senate, extending the application of the Monroe Doctrine to include Asiatic as well as European powers frustrated an alleged effort by a Japanese syndicate to get control of land on Magdalena Bay, Lower California.

A Senate resolution held that the occupation by any non-American state of a harbor or other place which might threaten the communications or safety of the United States would be viewed with grave concern by our government

Military Morale High.

The Mexican military establishment has been greatly improved in the last 10 years but it lacks the warships, heavy artillery and aircraft to withstand for long an attack in force by a first class power The army has some 50,000 men, about 60 airplanes and a small amount of artillery The navy consists of 10 small coast defense vessels and a few auxiliary ships

The army has a large, excellent cavalry force and the morale of all branches of the military service is rated high. Familiar with the Mexican terrain, these troops could work effectively with U. S. army units to repel an invader.

U. S. Fleet Main Bulwark.

An efficient railway network in Mexico, and the new Pan-American highway running from Laredo, Texas, to Mexico City, would be valuable arteries for speeding troops, artillery and supplies from this country to a defense zone south of the Rio Grande

But the primary protector of Mexico against invasion, assuming that the United States would employ armed intervention, would be Uncle Sam's battle fleets

Most interpretations of the Monroe Doctrine agree that this country is determined, for the same preservation-of-safety reasons, to resist Old World aggression in other Central American countries Such aggression would be regarded as a definite menace to a vital link in our outer chain of defense —the Panama canal

The canal, heavily fortified, provides quick passage for American warships from the Pacific to the Atlantic oceans This permits a single fleet to do duty on either coast Military experts believe that no fleet in the world today could destroy the defenses of the Panama canal

MOTHER, SISTER GIVE ANNOUNCEMENT PARTY

Reveal Engagement Of Miss Donna Elaine Wierman To Carl Eugene Fox At Dessert-Bridge Saturday Evening.

AT a beautifully appointed dessert-bridge Saturday night announcement was made of the approaching marriage of Miss Donna Elaine Wierman, and Carl Eugene Fox, of Bellaire, the event to take place June 25 at First Methodist Episcopal church with open church.

The bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Boyd Wierman, 1090 Park avenue west, and her sister, Miss Marlene Wierman, were hostesses at the bridge which was given at the Wierman home.

The announcement of the wedding date was made to guests as they received their favors at the small tables. Places were laid for 16 and at each place were miniature Colonial bouquets, made of lace and the flowers fashioned of minute shells tinted in pastel colors. From each bouquet a white satin ribbon was laid to the center piece of pink roses. Concealed in the roses and fastened to the ribbons were tiny gold wedding bells, each marked with the initials of the couple and the date of the wedding. The dessert and individual cakes served carried out the theme of the pastel flowers.

At the end of play, prizes for high scores were won by Miss Sue Anderson and Miss Teresa Peiffer. The bride-elect received a lovely personal gift from her mother and sister.

The Wierman home was decorated with garden flowers, bowls of roses and peonies predominating.

An out-of-town guest was Miss Harriet Will of Shelby.

Miss Wierman, who is cashier at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, was graduated from Mansfield High school and Ashland college, and also attended Ohio State and Ohio Northern universities.

Mr. Fox, who is a son of Rev. and Mrs. P. R. Fox of Fort Jefferson, is an electrical engineer with the Ohio Power company at Bellaire. He graduated from Van Wert High school and from Ohio Northern university, and is affiliated with Phi Mu Delta fraternity.

The wedding will be an afternoon affair and the reception will be held at the Leland ballroom.

Miss Speas Dance Revue Scheduled

Miss Margaret Speas, director of the Speas School of Dancing, will present 75 of her pupils in a music-and-dance revue at Senior High school auditorium, Friday, June 10.

An attractive stage setting and special scenic effects are being worked out for the revue. The stage will represent a roof garden and C. H. Saylor will act as master of ceremonies.

The costumes of the participants will be an outstanding feature of the presentation. Among the chorus numbers will be the cookie dance in which the chorus will wear chef uniforms and hats. In the "Topper" chorus, each dancer wears a costume made of a large high silk hat, with Glenn Schroff in the solo role.

Unusual costumes of reversible red and yellow will be used in a Dutch tulip number. Among the novelty dances will be an acrobatic hurdle by Patsy Frank; a roller skating dance by Norma Scott; and eccentric by Jean Schill; and a sail boat number with Robert Schrach leading a quartet.

Mrs. E. S. Scott and Mrs. C. L. Dillon will play the accompiments. Tickets for the revue are being sold by students and at the office of George Sherman, Senior High school, and at the Speas studio in the Bird building.

Mrs. Frank Gerhart, 153 Sturges avenue, returned home last night after visiting a week in Cleveland with relatives.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT FACE PIMPLES

These disfiguring little spots often result from a slight, temporary disturbance, or merely from incorrect cleansing, or sometimes they are more persistent due to deeper internal causes.

While properly treating the underlying cause, you can relieve the itchy, burning soreness and help your skin by using an ointment that will keep the medication in contact with the pimply spots. Apply it every night and leave it on all night. It does a world of good.

For more than 40 years people have used Resinol Ointment to fill this need. It soothes the irritation and aids healing. It also treats the oil pores where many surface pimples start. Washing first with Resinol Soap quickens the pleasing results.

Writer Feels Cheered By Comments

By VIRGINIA LEE

I have two letters before me. Neither is an appeal for help. One describes a walk the writer took, and the other is a particularly lovely letter commending this column. It is the sort that makes one feel that in spite of the days when the typewriter won't type and the old brain doesn't seem to function and, far from being able to suggest helpful things to my troubled readers, I am a casualty, the work I do is of some good in a worried world.

It has always struck me as odd that, as a general thing, if people approve of persons and things they seldom say so, while if a mistake is made or one happens to differ strongly with another's attitude on an issue, one can find time to write letters and tell them about it in "no uncertain terms."

A letter of criticism, no matter if it is meant to be constructive, always sounds so much more severe than it was meant, and hurts accordingly, while a letter of praise lifts up the soul and makes us long to be ever so many more times as good as the writer says we are.

I especially liked one phrase in the letter of the writer of the descriptive letter. It was:

"Our path ended at the paper-covered shack which was home to me for one night. The path that leads to a house is really always an interesting one, for paths wouldn't be paths if they didn't lead to a place of rest or retreat."

I wish all paths that lead to houses could lead one to homes of happiness, rest and peace.

The other letter says in part:

"We have never owned a home or car, but I have been able to make a cheap rent into a comfortable, cheerful home, where friends are welcome at all hours.

Reading so many letters from people whose homes are anything but comfortable and cheerful, it is restful to think that many more are what the good old song says, "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home."

That is what homes should be, and I am afraid I still cannot understand the woman who cannot find a "career" in making such a home for her husband and children. And even if she hasn't these, she can have a little cozy place "where friends are welcomed at all hours." It isn't money and lovely things that make a real home. It is good, wholesome, loving people.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

USE YOUR VISION

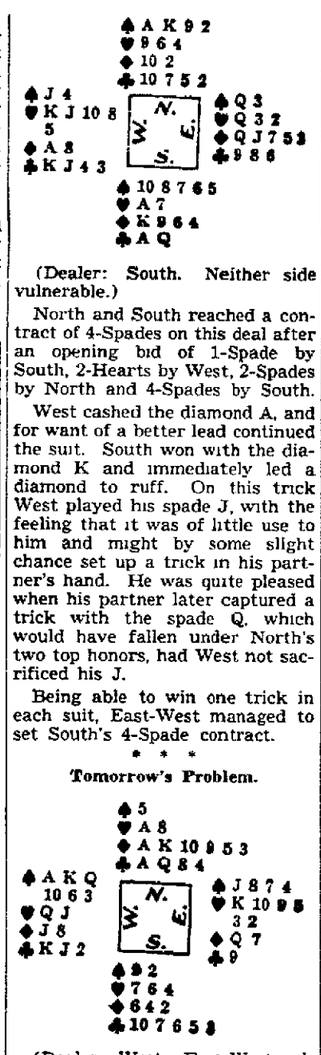
Powder to visualize your partner's possible holdings is an asset of telling value. Play of a certain card can sometimes bear fruit only if your associate holds some other particular card or cards. But figuring out such chances may point the only conceivable hope of beating the contract.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

North and South reached a contract of 4-Spades on this deal after an opening bid of 1-Spade by South, 2-Hearts by West, 2-Spades by North and 4-Spades by South.

West cashed the diamond A, and for want of a better lead continued the suit. South won with the diamond K and immediately led a diamond to ruff. On this trick West played his spade J, with the feeling that it was of little use to him and might by some slight chance set up a trick in his partner's hand. He was quite pleased when his partner later captured a trick with the spade Q, which would have fallen under North's two top honors, had West not sacrificed his J.

Being able to win one trick in each suit, East-West managed to set South's 4-Spade contract.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

What is the best defense by East-West against North's contract of 5-Diamonds?

Ice should always be washed before it is put in the ice box. Vegetables and fruits should also be washed free of grit and earth.

THEATER

EXODUS of Hollywood film players to other cities for summer stock and Little Theaters shows players from all classifications going into stage work for the summer. An interesting announcement comes from the internationally known municipal outdoor opera in St. Louis which opens its 20th season with some of Hollywood's famous comedians in the cast. Big, rotund Billy House, Jack Durant (who played at the Madison last season), Oscar Shaw, and Red Skelton, former Mansfield man, will make their operatic debut in "Gentlemen Unafraid," a new operetta by Oscar Hammaerstein, Otta Herbach and Jerome Kern. Other Hollywoodians in the opera will be Fifi D'Orsay, Nigel Bruce and Roland Drew. Skelton has been a box office attraction at the bigger movie houses as band leader and comedian.

* * *

Daughter of Writer.

Frances Mercer who makes her screen debut as Ginger Rogers' rival in "Vivacious Lady," is the daughter of Sid Mercer, noted New York sports writer. She is a former photographic model and at the age of 16 was selected from several hundred contestants as the most beautiful model in New York City. She has a good break in her first picture, for she has a role that will be remembered and she will be identified with it for some time. She and the blond star stage a hand-to-hand battle for the affections of James Stewart. James Ellison, who is seen as the other man aspiring to Miss Rogers' heart if not her hand, came to dramatic pictures by way of horse opera, having been featured with William Boyd in the Hopalong Cassidy pictures. "Vivacious Lady," a real rib tickler, is at the Ohio.

* * *

Newcomer Has Future.

Another newcomer, and one obviously with a future, makes her first appearance in "Crime School" at the Madison. She is Gale Page, the Spokane society girl (real name Sally Perkins Rutter) who played two seasons of stock in Spokane and then took to the air lanes, appearing in "Today's Children" program. She is very attractive and does well in her first screen role as the sweetheart of Humphrey Bogart. She matches her talent with his and with the six brilliant boy actors who achieved success on the stage and screen in "Dead End." The story is intensely dramatic and filled with suspense. It is booked to run through Wednesday.

* * *

Old Favorite Returns.

The story of "The Girl Was Young," booked for the Majestic tomorrow, reads very much like a real life story which flashed across American newspapers several years ago—a girl of Sheltered life who meets a lawless gangster and hold up man, falls in love with him and is carried along on his career of crime until the law catches up with her. In spite of its American inspiration it is an English made picture with Nova Pilbeam and Derriol de Marney. A supporting player that will interest American movie fans is Percy Marmont who played the hero in the silent picture "If Winter Comes." A Will Rogers reissue "Life Begins At 40," brings the comedian in the familiar role of the small town editor.

* * *

National Park Shown.

The story of how law and order supplanted the six-gun ruler of a rugged Western community is told in "The Bad Man of Brimstone," starring Wallace Beery, which is being shown at the Ritz. Filmed against the rugged beauty of Zion National park in Utah, "The Bad Man" is a story of an outlaw of the '80's whose reign is interrupted when he discovers that a stranger who is attempting to clean up Brimstone for the forces of law and order, is his own son. The part of the son is taken by Dennis O'Keefe, a new discovery in filmdom. Virginia Bruce is the romantic theme injected into the action. A Joe E. Brown comedy with Helen Mack, "Fit For A King" rounds out the bill.

My Neighbor Says:

Always know where to turn off the water supply at a moment's notice. Find out the precise position of the faucet controlling the main. It is usually either on the pavement or in the roadway opposite the house, or just within the garden gate, and covered with a metal lid.

Throughout the summer cultivation should be regular in order to destroy weeds. But when the buds begin to appear, shallow cultivation should be the practice or discontinue it altogether.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"It looks like the figures you are always putting down, and getting mixed up with your writing," Junior said a bit importantly when I mechanically had taken from him the clipped-together sheets of paper covered with figures written by his father.

"I'll bet Dad doesn't know where these are," he went on. "What do you think we'd better do with them?"

I pulled myself together from the shock of something Medusa-like in those columns of figures which had caught my eyes when Junior held the paper out to me.

"We'll put them on the top of the pile of drawings with a paper weight on them so they won't blow away," I said steadily. When I had suited the action to the word, and turned back to my son, he was at the door, once more a normally restless small boy.

"What kin I do now?" he demanded. "Old Rod's taking a bath and I don't want to go where Hank is."

"Suppose you go over and see if you can help Aunt Katherine with Faith," I suggested. "Faith has just finished her supper and is in her play pen. She seems very wide awake. Perhaps Aunt Katherine would like to have you play with Faith while she dresses."

Junior Leaves.

"I'll do that," Junior returned opening the door with alacrity, for taking care of Faith is to him a privilege instead of a chore. "She won't go to sleep for a long time. You can bet on that. She slept solid all through the last four hours of the trip."

"She will be wide awake, won't she?" I commented carefully, speeding him on his way with a kiss. When I locked the door after him, I was shaking as if with a chill, and my legs were still unsteady as I went back to the table and stood looking down at the pile of drawings with the sheets of figures topping them.

I carefully avoided looking again at the sheet of figures, for mine has been the training which counts prying into my husband's private papers as anathema. But I did not need a second glance. My eyes are trained to take in a large number of words or figures at a glance, and the glance I involuntarily had given the top paper when Junior held the clipped sheets out to me had printed an indelible picture upon my brain. My only problem now was what to do with the sheets. Leaving them in the place I had suggested to Junior would tell Dicky at once that someone had seen them. Yet, if I tucked them between the drawings again, I could not be sure of getting them in the same place. It was more than likely that Dicky himself did not know they were in the pile of drawings, but there was the thousandth chance that he did and would notice their having been moved.

Temptation Great.

Rarely has a temptation so shaken me as has the one which seized me when I lifted the papers to put them somewhere between the drawings. It was my duty, the devil of curiosity whispered to me, to look through those papers and see if the rest of them continued the bizarre reckoning of that first page, and if it in any way had a connection with the "jam" in which Dicky had said he was involved, and to the inexplicable scene which Mary and I had involuntarily witnessed.

For my one involuntary glance at the page had shown me a reckoning which had astounded and frightened me. It ran something like this:

Cash in bank .....(so much)
Can raise on life insurance .....(so much)
Can borrow .....(so much)
Advance on work .....(so much)
Total .....(so much)

Then a single despairing notation: "Not enough," followed by an imprecation trailing off illegibly to the side.

There were other figures on the paper, plenty of them, but I had kept my eyes carefully averted from them. And I never have had a harder struggle than the one I underwent to lay the papers away without a second glance at them.

"I had forgotten that Dicky's studio has two entrances, one the door I had locked, the other a glass door from an outdoor balcony which has another door leading to the upper hall. But I was forcibly reminded of the second door, which was behind me, by a furious rattling of its knob. When I turned, Dicky's face dark with anger, glared in at me. He must have seen me put the clipped papers back between the drawings!

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, June 7

According to the predominant planetary influences, this may be a day of conflicting conditions. While there may be benefits in connection with employment, yet at the same time there may be delays, disappointments and setbacks in relation to industry and labor. A bereavement may be the obstructing cause, but definite progress may be made by diligence, care with writings and, through the influence of elders or women.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of conflicting interests, with much definite progress in work, employment and through favors from superiors, elders or feminine influence. There may also be postponements or disappointments owing to a bereavement. Be careful with writings and documents.

A child born on this day may be studious, industrious and ambitious for success, but may suffer at the hands of unscrupulous partners or associates in business.

As the flower buds begin to appear at the end of dahlia stems, laterals will start to grow from the axils of the leaves. All of these except the basal pair should be rubbed out as they appear. In this way, large, long-stemmed flowers will be obtained and a sequence of bloom will be assured.

Always be sure that the dahlias have plenty of water. And another good thing is to put in your stakes at planting time rather than later.

Salads Tempt Spring Appetites

By IRENE OBERLIN
Home Service Department, Ohio Public Service company.

Salads are always a refreshing accompaniment for any luncheon or dinner. When used as the main part of the luncheon can be of a heavier, more substantial variety while for the dinner should be a more simple combination and the ingredients of course should not be duplicated in any other part of the dinner. The most important requirements of a good salad are that they should be crisp and cold and nicely seasoned

This chicken salad recipe is a substantial luncheon accompanied with hot rolls or biscuits.

Chicken Salad.

3 cups cold cooked chicken (diced)
1½ cups celery
2 hard boiled eggs
¼ cup pimento or green pepper (cut fine).
1 cup maponnaise
Use a garnish of French endive and a few stuffed olives

Cooked Mayonnaise Dressing.

2 egg yolks (unbeaten)
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. mustard
Dash of paprika
2 Tbsp. lemon juice
2 Tbsp. vinegar
Make a thick, smooth white sauce
1 heaping Tbsp. butter
½ cup flour
1 cup water

Turn-Overs And Appetizers

Linked sausages are rolled in biscuit dough, baked in a hot oven and served with a creole sauce—as a hot luncheon dish. Tiny cocktail sausages are placed on smaller rounds of biscuit dough, topped with strips of dough and baked—for the cocktail hour.

Judging Fish

To determine the freshness of fish, see that the gills are red, the scales stick close together, the eyes are bright and bulging, the fish is free from too strong an odor, the flesh looks clear and is firm to the touch.

Cover Custard

To prevent a coating from forming over the top of boiled custard after it has been poured into a dish, cover it as soon as it is cool with a lid or waxed paper and store it in the refrigerator.

Make your own kitchen containers out of coffee, baking powder or cracker cans. Remove all paper coverings, then paint or shellac the cans and put labels on them.

Strawberry Hint

Want to help keep your strawberries plump and red when they are cooked? Add a teaspoon of vinegar to each two cups of berries But remember, prolonged cooking will destroy color, flavor and texture of berries whatever you do.

Frosty Appetizers

When serving fruit cocktails, dip the rims of the glasses into fruit juice, then into confectioner's sugar. That will put an attractive frosty - looking ring around the top.

Right now is an excellent time to start your dahlias. In heavy soils the tuberous roots ought to be about 4 inches deep and in sandy soils down to 6 inches. Don't cover the root with more than 2 inches of soil to start with, but fill in the hole as the plant gets up. Any good garden loam will do, but it needs to be well drained.

After shrubs and privet hedges the pruned, burn up prunings and save the ashes to mix in garden soil. The ashes will lighten and fertilize the soil.
